

Rotenone Dust Will Check Bean Beetles

Mexican bean beetles are raiding North Carolina's gardens and truck patches again this year.

But the invasion can be stopped with a counter-attack of rotenone spray or dust, said J. O. Rowell, extension entomologist at State College.

Although this material is sure death to the beetles, he added it is harmless to human beings. Also, it is comparatively inexpensive to use.

Whenever beetles are found on bean plants, or eggs clusters appear on the underside of the leaves, Rowell said the grower should start spraying or dusting with derris or cube root containing rotenone.

To make a spray, use dust containing 4 per cent rotenone. Mix 1 1/2 pounds of dust with 50 gallons of water, or 1 1/2 ounces of dust in 3 gallons of water if a smaller quantity is desired.

Spray the plants thoroughly at the rate of 90 to 100 gallons per acre. To be effective, the spray must reach the underside of the leaves.

Or if dusting is preferred, use finely ground or cube root dust containing three-fourths of one per cent rotenone, making sure that dust settles on the underside of the leaves as well as the rest of the plant. Apply dust at the rate of 15 or 20 pounds per acre.

Repeat the spray or dusting every few days until the beetles have been eradicated, Rowell pointed out.

When making a spray, he continued, use only a dust with a diluent that will mix readily with water. The label on the package usually tells whether it will mix with water.

Calcium arsenate and arsenate of lead are injurious to plants and are not recommended, Rowell concluded.

Orphanage Singers Giving Concert, 16

The singing class of the Oxford Orphanage will give their annual concert in the auditorium of the Central Elementary school, at 8 o'clock on Friday, July the 16th.

The group is again under the direction of Mrs. Sadie T. Hutensinon and is composed of fourteen boys and girls. The program will be featured with delightful songs, recitations and drills with colorful costumes and splendid music.

For more than fifty years the singing class has made annual tours over the state, each year bringing a new group of students and a new program. The appearance of these children in the various communities has been a great influence in putting the cause of work of the orphanage before the public. In the sixty-two years of its existence, there is scarcely a community in the state that has not sent some boy or girl to the Oxford Orphanage for care and training.

Husbands And Cattle Are Sought By Austrian Brides

Marriages of convenience, always numerous, in Austria, have developed a specialty—marriages for smuggling. Austrian law provides that an Austrian bride may bring into the country whatever she wants, as dowry, free of duty, for one year after the wedding. An increasing number of men in the border area, south of Gras, are taking brides of Yugoslavia and with them herds of cattle, long a favorite object of smuggling because customs on them are high.

—TIMELY— Farm Questions and Answers

Question: How often should tobacco be primed to insure a quality leaf?

Answer: This depends upon the maturity of the leaves and seasonal conditions, but usually the plants should be primed at least once a week during normal seasons. Only uniform, ripe, well-developed leaves should be primed. Begin the harvest as soon as the bottom leaves turn yellow. The first leaves can be pulled a little greener, if the leaf is matured, than at any other priming. A uniformity in pulling and handling tobacco will add as much to the quality as any other one factor. Precautions should therefore be taken not to bruise the leaves in handling.

Question: When should cockerels be caponized for the early market?

Answer: As it usually takes from eight to eleven months to properly develop and finish a capon, the birds should be caponized from mid-June until the first of August so as to reach the national market between January first and March first. Vigorous birds that have proper care and feed will develop in a shorter time. Caponizing at this time will also take late-hatched cockerels off the market when broiler prices are usually low. Birds from one and one-half to two pounds in weight may be used with the smaller birds having a greater chance for a complete operation and development.

Question: How can I keep cream sweet and fresh until it is marketed?

Answer: Immediately after milking the milk should be strained and separated. Place the cream in a can and cool the cream by submerging the can in cold water so that the entire contents are below the surface of the water. Stir occasionally to hasten cooling and keep the container in cold water until ready for market. DO NOT add warm cream to the cold cream. If this is done in sufficient quantity, the temperature of the cold cream will be raised and the bacterial action stimulated which will endanger the quality of the entire batch.

Question: When should lespedeza be cut for hay?

Answer: The crop should be cut when the plants attain a height of 15 inches, or when it is in full bloom, whichever occurs first. To wait later will injure the quality of the hay and also occasion the loss of the lower leaves. If cut early, lespedeza will make enough second growth to reseed the land well, but it is seldom possible to get a good hay crop and a seed crop the same year. The usual dates for cutting the Korean variety is about August 1 with the other varieties maturing 15 days later.

Question: Is barley a satisfactory feed for poultry?

Answer: While not as palatable as corn or wheat, barley is an excellent poultry feed. However, if used as a substitute for yellow corn in the scratch or if barley meal is to replace yellow corn meal in the mash, a supplement must be made to the deficiency in vitamins which is brought about by this meal. A mash would be better than a scratch of 5 per cent alfalfa and 1 per cent of vitamin A.
