Along the POLITICAL FRONTS

Republicans occupied the center of the political stage during the past week. From one wing entered former Governor Alf M. Landon, who got a load off his chest while in Washington last week, when he made a definite statement that he would not accept the presidential nomination if offered to him by the convention.

From the other wing, North Carolina's Charles A. Jonas, of Lincolnton, stepped forth, and made a bitter attack on the national GOP leaders, by charging that the national leaders had "sacrificed party growth in the south in exchange for 'controlled' votes in the committee at the convention."

Hardly had Mr. Landon settled down in his hotel room in Washington before President Roosevelt had invited him to visit the White House the next afternoon.

Mr. Landon said in his interview: "I have not had any intention of being a candidate in 1940 and in order that my position may be perfectly clear, I will not accept the nomination in the remote contingency that the Republican national convention should offer it to me."

All the while that Mr. Landon was making his statements in Washington, Mr. Jonas was "raking national GOP leaders over the coals." He said in part, "the party organization should be revitalized and nationalized, but let the rebuilding begin where the dry rot started."

Continuing, he remarked: "Particularly successful efforts of respectable Republican leaders in the south recruited by hundreds of thousands of former Democrats in recent years to 'purge' the party leadership in these rotten boroughs of the deep south have met constant opposition by eastern members of the committee."

Last Saturday Governor Clyde R. Hoey celebrated his 60th birthday. The Tar Heel governor was born in Shelby, in 1877. He started to work when he was 13, and when only seventeen, he bought a newspaper, which he published and edited until 1908. In the meantime he had studied law, and passed the bar examination. At about the same time he married Miss Bessie Gardner, sister of O. Max Gardner.

The Governor is taking his job seriously, and is doing a lot of traveling over the state, according to reports from Raleigh, which said that he had traveled over 17,000 miles in the official car to date—most of it within this state.

President Roosevelt continued to improve after his infected gum was given adequate treatment in the White House. After the visits of Mr. Landon to the White House, the former Kansas Governor said: "I was glad to see the President looking so well. He told me about his tooth and we also talked about bandages and how they were made under the NRA code. The President thought I had the best of its not having his job."

Vice President John Garner recently killed a deer—"Bessie"—in Pennsylvania, and invited 24 members of the Senate to a venison dinner. The President did not receive an invitation, so he wrote the following letter to the vice president:

"Dear Jack:—
"I have read in the papers that tonight you and 24 members of the Senate are attending the funeral of my old friend Bessie. . . .
"It makes me feel so shaky when I think of her untimely demise that I do not think that I could attend the funeral service tonight even if I had been invited. . . ."

Little disturbed was the President at Representative Clare E. Hoffman's caustic, "These presidential vacations are getting to be something of a habit in times of trouble. . . . He acts something like a small boy around the Fourth of July. He sets the match to the fire cracker and then runs away."

Little chance will Mr. Roosevelt have to dodge the festivities arranged for the White House Christmas, dances, dinners, and a house filled with his children's children will send bubbling laughter through the mansion more accustomed to the grave tones of Administrative aids, the suave tones of gold-braided diplomats, the heckling tones of an inquisitive press.

Farmers Paid $14,000 Monthly For Fluid Milk

Greater Production Needed By Pet Dairy Products Company In Order To Meet Demands

Last month, 232 Haywood farmers were paid $14,000 for fluid milk used by the Waynesville plant of the Pet Dairy Products Company, according to W. R. Woodall, manager.

A shortage of grade "A" milk in the Piedmont section of the state resulted in an inspection being made here of health officers from that section, and they found dairies here in A-1 condition, and milk is now being shipped to eastern points in this state.

There is no surplus milk in Haywood county. The unlimited markets are taking all that is produced, Mr. Woodall said. He also said that he could use 500 more gallons right now.

Besides the vast increase in the amount of fluid milk, the local plant will make about 132,000 pounds of butter for 1937.

In his annual report, Dr. Garber made a comparison of the statistics of the session of 1937 with those of 1936, showing an increase on enrollment of twelve students, but one less from Haywood county. He stated that the authorities of Duke University would again make up the sum of $2,300 for the summer school, provided Haywood county would make the usual teacher-training appropriation of $200.

He also pledged the support of the Board of Missions of the Methodist Episcopal church, and the Board of Christian Education, which have been furnishing gratis the services of two valuable faculty members. He presented a tentative budget for the 1938 session.

Varied And Interesting Articles Found In Today's Mountaineer

Today's paper has so many distinctive articles, that special attention is being called to them.

First, two townships of the county have long articles about them. Iron Duff, and a history of their people, is discussed by a former citizen of the township.

About Fines Creek, an article dealing with early history, centering around the War Between the States, is discussed by Miss Mildred Rogers.

In "Here and There" a survey was made and reported on by Mrs. T. L. Gwyn, on what the local market manufactures for Christmas gifts.

Of course, it was no more than could be expected after the recent cold weather, than for Uncle Abe to tell of his experiences with frozen water pipes. (Some phrases were struck out by the editor so the article is safe for all the family to read.)

Two Papers Will Be Published For Christmas Week

The regular edition of The Mountaineer will go to press next week on Tuesday afternoon. The deadline for all copy will be noon Tuesday.

A special Christmas edition will be published on Thursday afternoon. This special edition will go into the mails Thursday night, and all subscribers will get their copies on Friday.

The special Christmas issue will be in colors-front and back pages. Red and green ink will be used in outlining holiday features. Greetings from individuals and firms will be used extensively in the issue. Several special Christmas articles are being prepared for the Friday issue. All copy for this edition will have to be in the office by noon Thursday.

The regular paper will be published the week after Christmas as usual.

Sunburst CCC Camp To Be Demobilized Soon

189 Men Will Be Moved To Other Camps. This Was One Of 131 Camps Discontinued

The CCC camp at Sunburst was one of the 131 camps in the country ordered to be demobilized as of December 16.

Lieutenant Louis B. Magid, Jr., commanding officer of the camp, said yesterday that he had not received orders as to where the 189 men now in the Sunburst camp would be sent. He expected to get orders this week regarding the replacement of the men.

The Sunburst camp was built some two and a half years ago. The men have built 7 miles of road towards the top of Tennessee Bald through Beech Gap. Five miles of the road are complete, and 2 miles practically complete. There remain two miles to the top of the mountain. The men from the Rosman camp have built about 6 miles on the other side of the mountain.

Besides the road work, the men have spent considerable time in timber work, placing fish in streams, and work in wildlife conservation.

The buildings will not be torn down, yet there is little likelihood that the camp will be reoccupied.

Lieutenant Magid has been commanding officer for the past year.
