HERE and THERE

By Hilda Way Gwy

The proposed slogan "The Balanced State" which was considered for the 1939 automobile tags... has certainly brought forth much comment from the North Carolina press... most vehement as observed by the writer... has been Louis Graves, editor of the Chapel Hill Weekly... in an editorial which was quoted in full by more than one paper... Louis thinks it will strike the public as "a manifestation of puerile vanity"... he also cites some figures that prove that we are not in reality a well balanced state... and what he left out... of our many failings... Nell Battle Lewis, columnist and feature writer of the Raleigh News and Observer... certainly exposed... really as a state between them they have taken all the vanity out of us... which you know is often a very good thing... for if one is in earnest about doing one's best... praise is as nothing, compared to some healthy constructive criticism... maybe it would be best for the visitor to come and decide for himself... there are a great many of us who are fed up on this eternal boasting of North Carolina and her achievements... when we only have to look around to know how incomplete the job is... we would do well to look more to the future... instead of being so complacently satisfied with the past and the present...

The following which appeared as an advertisement... more or less attracted my eye this week... from a "pioneer in self defense, of a man who would be a house-keeper..."

"Since the war women have been replacing men in industry... so it behooves me to pioneer in a new field for men. I am thoroughly experienced as a house-keeper and a plain cook. I like children, can keep them amused and teach them French, German, and Italian. I attended Columbia University and college in Chicago, where naturally I was trained for work of a more masculine nature. But I am 38 years old, women are doing my work, so it seems I've got to do theirs. Incidentally and modestly, I can do their work better than they can do mine." "Pittsfield, Mass., March 24, 1938."

I see that Alice Roosevelt Longworth is going to take to the platform, and this fall and winter tour the country... I wonder if she will attract the crowds that her late illustrious father did... and I also wonder if she will take as her subject... politics, on which she is supposed to be an authority... and will roast her kinsman, the present occupant of the White House, as much as in days gone by... her acceptance and her reported enjoyment of the parties given by the Franklin D. Roosevelt... which is often followed by criticism... is at least contrary to what most of us have been taught is good manners... if her lectures are as full of punch as her privately expressed views are said to be... she'll be able to add considerably to her pocket book, which is reported to have suffered... along with the rest of us...

In continuance of the ideas advanced in this column about having one special shrub or flower as a motif of beautification for this section... last week's paper carried a lengthy contribution by Charles Ray... the question naturally arises... what shall we plant here?... rhododendron... has often been mentioned... but while native is quite disappointing, when transplanted and takes years to give an effective and satisfactory planting... the another important factor in selecting the plant or flower... is what season do we wish to draw the public?... we know they will be here in mid-summer...

Mrs. Harry Hall, one of our foremost local gardeners, advocates the planting of four varieties... daffodils... iris... dogwood and azaleas... all four massed in plantings of one variety for the most desirable results... Mrs. Hall suggests that the street leading from the Pet Dairy Company to the Denton residence... be planted as an inviting entrance in masses of the shrubs and flowers she favors... and what would be a more pleasing welcome... and there is no doubt if we specialized on such beauty... in time our effects would be rewarded by the dreamed of... "lengthened season..."

If a bill pending in Congress is enacted, the United States may build and operate a radio broadcasting station to transmit programs of high frequencies to all the countries in the Western Hemisphere. Purpose of the project is to promote friendly relations between this country and foreign nations.

A program is being carried out under Labor Department supervision to solve the problem of aiding men and women over 45 to get jobs. Only one state has taken definite steps to prevent discrimination against older workers. Massachusetts has passed such a law. Violation, however, carries no penalty except publication of complaint.
