

Former County Agent On Visit In Haywood

Mr. L. Robinson, former Haywood county agent, was here the first of the week, attending the vocational teachers conference at Lake Junaluska.

Mr. Robinson is now Extension agent of the Farm Credit Administration and he has the territory of Pennsylvania to Colorado. His headquarters are at Arlington, Va.

Mr. Robinson served Haywood as county agent from 1929 to January, 1931.

Four years ago he took up the new work which is along an educational line. He left here Wednesday.

Ed Hembree Wins In State Essay Contest

Announcement was made last week that Ed Hembree, member of the Haywood chapter of Future Farmers of America, won second prize in the state essay contest sponsored by the National Nitrate Educational Bureau. Ed will receive a cash prize of $125.00 for this honor.

Young Hembree will be a senior in the Elmer Creek high school this fall, and is the son of J. F. Hembree, Waynesville, Route One.

Ed also represented his chapter in the public speaking contest held recently at Swannanoa.

The Boulder dam will form a lake 10 feet deep in the deepest part and 10 miles long.

HERE and THERE

By

As I go up and down Main street... I am reminded of the two so called improvements... urged... at the time... I was told by civic leaders... that I continually regret... that is... the razing of the Rogers home... on the lot of the Park Theatre... and the old Mendenhall place... next to the Dunham House... later known as Miss Mollie Ector's... and still later as the Stone house... called during the Stone's residence "Mt. Vernon"... These two old places had possibilities of renovation... and they made the town look as if it had been a village for at least a half century or more... the old Mendenhall place would have been ideal for the weaving center of the Balsam Weavers... it would have lent the proper atmosphere... which would have appealed to the tourist... that all resorts are striving to retain... it seems a shame to have torn down the Rogers home and the Mendenhall place and left as the one land mark... the Kenmore Hotel... when it possesses none of the possibilities of the other places... I dislike everything new when there is a background of other years... it looks like a discredit to the past... not to retain something of by gone days... of course the Mendenhall lot under the growing magic touch of Donald Dunham is a beauty spot in summer—and we have to admit that with its white fence, the Rogers property gives quite a rural atmosphere to Main street—or perhaps I should say "pastoral"...

loyalty calls for loyalty in return... the fellow who goes through this world suspecting every one is not likely to get very far... because people instinctively don't trust one who doesn't trust them... a man cannot get along in this world without loyalty from his associates and a man cannot expect loyalty unless he gives it...

Loyalty brings to mind faith... Lydia Smathers Holtzclaw, of Richmond and Balsam... formerly of Waynesville... mother of Adora Prevost, has recently written a poem called "Faith"... which has much to commend it... so I pass it on to you...

Faith

The strength of a man is the faith he holds
And the courage that this faith gives;
It makes him true to himself and moulds,
The shape of the life he lives.
It keeps him steadfast and of good cheer,
And the road of his life is straight.
He moves with a splendid lack of fear,
As he laughs at the stings of fate.
He faces the future with calm clear eyes

TO MY FRIENDS

I have been a victim of circumstance, have practically lost my hearing, lost my home, and I still count myself a live Democrat and one of the best political prognosticators in Virginia or North Carolina.

I keep myself well posted by reading daily newspapers and keeping abreast with the times, socially, politically and religiously.

After I returned to my native county I looked over the situation with the view of making the race for representative and after doing so I found that I could win, then I was told my opponent was thinking of making the race, so I wrote him that if he didn't want to be defeated, my advice would be to stay at home. After that I met him on the street and he handed me a few lines that read, "I think I ought to stay at home." I of course, very readily agreed with him, but he went right off and announced as a candidate for representative.

It is true I called upon my opponent and spent the night and we agreed on every point, except his withdrawing from the race, however, my main reason was to know if he was going to spend any money to buy votes, and he promised me fair and faithful that he would not.

My father and I have done more to advance the cause of the Democratic party than all the Palmer generation. As you all know my father was a great educator; I taught nine or ten years, then took a job with the Asheville Citizen Company, which job I held twenty-four years. When I first began work for the company there were but few people reading the daily papers, but I found the more you educated the people the more they will vote the Democratic ticket. Just to show you that I'm absolutely right, the town was infested with Republicans and dog fennel, and today you can hardly find either in the town, except such as Horace Sentelle and John Shook.

Now, my friends, I have this to say, that I have fought and worked for the Democratic party for over forty years and have never been honored with a public office, and am now only asking you to send me to the legislature, which only pays $600.00 and if you remain in session more than sixty days, you pay your own expenses and get absolutely nothing for your extra work.

I very frankly admit that my hearing is a handicap to me, but I have great advantage over my opponent. I knew every man from the west in 1935, and but one Republican in the bunch, in 1937 I knew every one, and two Republicans, and I know every man that will be nominated this time from the west and a goodly number from different parts of the state, so if any bills come up that my people are vitally interested in I certainly will have a better pull than Mr. Palmer.

Judging from those that have heretofore and are now making the race for representative in old Haywood for the house of representatives of North Carolina, it is not expected to require a very shrewd brilliant man to represent this county, and although I'm hard of hearing, I can prepare bills and introduce them, answer the roll call, draw my breath and pay, just as well as Mr. Palmer or anyone else.

I favor the repeal of the Sales Tax on all meals in boarding houses and cafes.

I have seen people from all over the county and I have no doubt about the results next Saturday night. My case is in your hands and in conclusion, I wish to thank one and all for the interest taken in my behalf.

J. E. SENTELLE,
Candidate for Representative.

COUNTY AGENTS' COLUMN

TO THOSE INTERESTED IN HOME DAIRYING

A. C. Kimrey, Extension Dairyman of State College, will be in Haywood county Tuesday, June 7, to hold a county-wide meeting on "Milk Care and Butter Making in the Home."

The demonstrations which Mr. Kimrey gives have been very favorably received in other counties, so we have no hesitation in inviting and urging both men and women to attend this meeting to be held in the court room in Waynesville at 2:00 p. m. Tuesday, June 7. We feel sure that you will get something of value from the meeting.

Home demonstration club women who attended the district federation meeting in Sylva in May, 1937 will recall Mr. Kimrey and the talk he made there.

We hope that as many as possible of you will be with us.

$18,966.37 has been received to date as payment on 591 farms under the 1937 Soil Conservation program in Haywood county. This amount is approximately half of the amount expected and covers approximately half the farms on which payment will be made.

Approximately 900 tons of ground agricultural limestone has been used in Haywood county since January 1, 1938.

131,200 pounds of Triple Superphosphate have been supplied to unit test demonstration and area demonstration farmers in Haywood county since January 1, 1938.

Mt. Sterling CCC Boys Taking Course In Voc. Agriculture

J. C. Brown, local teacher of vocational agriculture, has been granted authority by the State Department of Education to give instructions to members of Mt. Sterling CCC camp in vocational agriculture. The request came from the regional supervisor of education for CCC enrollees.

A program of agricultural training, in a limited scope, has inaugurated last week when the local teacher spent several days at camp with the boys. Courses were organized in poultry, fertilizers, farm management and gardening. According to Capt. John R. Horne, commander of the camp, the majority of the young men enrolled there are originally from the farm and many expect to go back to the agrarian life. While at the camp the construction of a broader house was begun, also a site for a market garden of one acre was chosen.

As the summer progresses Educational Advisers Hicks and Brown will map out a definite program of training in agriculture for the enrollees. The normal strength of the company is 150, according to the commander, however, there only about one hundred enrolled at the present.

HUGE HANGAR

MIAMI, Fla.—A new hangar, 150 by 180 feet, enclosing 76,000 square feet and giving 35-foot clearance above ground, the largest in the world, has been opened for use. It is being operated by the Pan-American Airways and will be used to store the new huge airplanes now operated by this company.
