New "Pain Killer" Makes Visits To Dentists Pleasant

By Nancy Grimes. In The Portsmouth (Ohio) Times.

Oh the drill goes 'round an' 'round, oh-ho, oh-hum! It doesn't hurt a bit! The painless dentist now becomes an actuality through the medium of the Analgesor, a new gadget in the field of dentistry for deadening that dreaded drilling pain, which makes patients squeal and squirm in the chair and put off the "ordeal" of going to the dentist.

We expected most anything to happen. And it did. After two or three deep breaths, a feeling of utter relaxation, accompanied by a faint tingling sensation overtook our jumbling nerves.

Three more breaths and we were sitting on top of the world! "Close your mouth hard," the dentist told us.

Oh-ho, oh-hum! We didn't feel a thing—except the ecstasy of no pain, and the desire to laugh and laugh.

The Analgesor is a small apparatus, operated by the patient while in the dental chair, which produces analgesia—putting to sleep the fifth nerve, which affects the teeth—so that while the patient is perfectly conscious, no pain is experienced while the dentist is busy drilling, filling and scaling cavities.

Onto a small gas tank are attached a bulb, nosepiece and rubber bag. The nosepiece is adjusted on the patient, who also operates the bulb. The patient continually breathes air but adds nitrous oxide by compressing the bulb whenever pain is anticipated.

Several Portsmouth dentists already have introduced the Analgesor to their patients and more have placed orders for the little "wonder machine."

Describing the various reactions of patients to the Analgesor, our dentist told of one patient who was a bit nervous in trying it. Finally persuaded, she began squeezing the bulb. During the work of the dentist, which would have produced pain, he asked the patient if she felt any.

"Oh, yes," she laughingly replied. "But go right ahead and drill, doctor, hee hee! ho ho! ha ha! I don't mind at all. Just drill right along."

As far as we're concerned, the Analgesor is the answer to our nervous system when confronted with the knowledge that we're due at the dentist's.

Yes, sir, the drill goes 'round an' 'round, oh-ho, oh-hum! But it doesn't hurt a bit!

Noticing the various reactions of patients to the Analgesor, our dentist told of one patient who was a bit nervous in trying it. Finally persuaded, she began squeezing the bulb.

Safety Worker Hits At Officers For Law Enforcement

Says Beer, Wine, Whiskey And Speed Are Direct Cause 85% Of Highway Accidents

"Eighty-five per cent of the 40,000 killed, and over a million injured last year on the highways, was due to either, beer, wine, liquor or speed," according to Walter V. Hosier, safety director of the Carolina Motor Club in his talk before Rotarians here last Friday.

The speaker compared death on the highway as worse than war, stating that more people lost their lives on the highways than in all the wars that America had ever participated.

"State, city and county police tell us that it is almost impossible to get convictions for drunken driving, so, rather than to be made the goat in a trial, they prefer a reckless driving charge against the drunken and drinking driver, which does not take his drivers permit, or keep him off the highway. The officers know they are right, but it is impossible to prove it, against shrewd lawyers and dishonest character witnesses, who through sympathy hate to see a friend go to jail. The drunken driver is therefore fined a small fine on a minor charge and off he goes back on our highways to do the same thing all over again. If the violator is wealthy or influential his case is postponed many times for over a year and eventually taken off the docket by an entirely too friendly prosecutor.

"How long are decent respectable people going to tolerate this in this community; this reckless, ruthless, drinking driving; beer, wine, whiskey and speed, that has caused an increase in killed of 130 per cent in the youth in the senior high school and junior college ages. It is time for the people of this community and state to rise in all their power to tear down and destroy this evil that is killing and injuring our people at the rate of 5 people every 2 minutes of the 24 hour day.

"The greatest problem we have in life is the salvation of our own souls. Nothing now or hereafter should ever interfere with that, but we never would have had a living soul until God gave us this body, and so the body is the temple of the soul, and we are charged with the responsibility of the protection and preservation of bodies, not only to protect and preserve them from ravishment by disease but from destruction on our streets and highways."

Burton Cathey, a member of the Bethel chapter of the Future Farmers of America, was one of the thirty-four boys in North Carolina to receive the Carolina Farmer degree at State College, Raleigh during the state meeting of the Young Tar Heel Farmers Association of the Future Farmers of America a few days ago.

Young Cathey borrowed nearly three hundred dollars two years ago to purchase a mare, seeds, fertilizer, feeds and equipment to start into farming. He has raised two colts, selling the first one this summer to pay on his loan. He grew seven acres of corn and an acre of Irish potatoes in addition to the food and feed crops last year.

Burton earned about $300 farming last year. He has a savings account, has been president of the Bethel FFA chapter and of the federated chapters. He represented the chapter in public speaking three years. He was a member of last year's basketball team, and will enter State College in January to study agriculture. Bethel Boys Enjoy Trip To State And National Capitol

"The best trip I've ever been on" was what the twenty-three Future Farmers of America said upon their return to Haywood county last Wednesday, after an eight-day education-trip to Washington, D. C.

The boys went to Raleigh the first day, staying at State College two nights. Here the boys observed the State meeting of the Future Farmers of America, visited the state capitol, the museum, the state insane asylum and the penitentiary.

Three days were spent in Washington and Mt. Vernon. The following points were visited in Washington: The Capitol, Smithsonian Institute and Museums, Aviation Building, Library of Congress, Supreme Court Building, the White House, Bureau of Printing and Engraving, the Zoological Park, Arlington Cemetery, Lincoln Memorial, Washington Monument, Glenn Eco Park and Griffith Stadium where the boys saw their first big league baseball game between the Washington Senators and the Chicago White Sox.

The return tour was made through the Shenandoah Valley of Virginia. In this famous farming section the boys saw some of the best beef cattle herds of the country, as well as other livestock and crop farming. The boys visited the Shenandoah Caverns at Mt. Jackson, Va.

The expenses of the trip were very reasonable. Part of the food was furnished by each boy. Two gas stoves were used to do the cooking. Two large fly tents were spread from each side of the bus to house the boys. The boys camped in the Washington tourist camp in Washington.

The Bethel FFA boys will make a trip west next summer.
