

HERE and THERE

By
Hilda Way Gwyn

Something that struck me very forcibly during the week . . . "Truth" used to be hidden at the bottom of the well . . . Now its buried under a mountain of propaganda . . . just stop and consider the meaning . . . of the propaganda . . . it seems that everything that is inaugurated in modern times is so cluttered up with propaganda that one has to be a very astute student often to perceive the underlying principle . . . the method of sugar coating of a bad dose that has been tried to bamboozle the public with . . . that we are all more or less suspicious of everything that is launched . . . we find ourselves invariably hunting for the "catch" . . . of the message in the woodpile . . . and many times regardless of how high sounding the cause . . . if we look deep enough . . . we'll find that all is not velvet . . .

Herbert Hoover . . . on his way to a fishing trip recently . . . to the Canadian West . . . trying to escape reporters . . . who were pressing him for political discussions . . . spoke of what he called the two remaining avenues to privacy . . . "They are prayer and fishing" . . . and I guess he is about right . . . time was when I was very young and heard talk about how everybody knew your business in a small town . . . I believe that the city offered one escape . . . but if one has a circle of friends and acquaintances . . . ones affairs and privacy will be discussed and interrupted anywhere . . . the city dweller . . . with his circle meets the same situation . . . but after all I'd rather get many dirty digs . . . along with the friendliness that makes life worth living than give a lonesome sort of existence . . . far from the maddening crowd . . . for you can't please everybody . . . remember the fall of the man and his donkey? . . . but between us it is annoying how our friends so often forget to tell us something nice . . . but are so generous with reference to our mistakes . . . if you don't know what I mean . . . get a job reporting for a newspaper . . . and you'll understand perfectly . . .

Prospect of the hottest political news of the past week was the announcement by Mrs. Bilbo, nine days divorced from Senator Bilbo, of Mississippi . . . to whom she has been married 14 years . . . Mrs. Bilbo contemplates running against her husband in the 1940 Senatorial race . . . She says "Long before my divorce, I was thinking of running against my husband. I don't know yet what my platform might be" . . . In his 1934 campaign it is said that Senator Bilbo made 250 stump speeches and covered 10,000 miles . . . but even so . . . he might be hard to catch up with . . . a wife of 14 years standing would know the vulnerable spots of a man, enough to run him . . . if she tried hard enough . . . Senator, you better make some sense to the folks . . .

The following was generously presented by Gertrude Trowbridge, newspaper woman, and the fine feature writer for the Washington Post . . . who is spending the summer here at the Woodland Hotel . . . most of her time writing . . .

"There are many places like Waynesville where the summer population is augmented by a lot of strangers."

KATE WILLIAMSON,
Asst. Clerk of the Superior Court of Haywood County, N. C.
This 1st day of August, 1938.
No. 770—Aug. 4-11-18-25.

I often try to think just what this association means.

Being a stranger myself, I can make a long list of the local benefits. Delightful bracing air and cool nights head it. Scenery just impressive enough to allow a feeling of intimacy with hills and superb cloud effects, come next. A few more advantages are, inspiring churches, good shops, fine professional workers, marvelous fruits, and hospitality of residents.

We northerners have a distinct delight in the beautiful blond and red-headed children that are rare among our mixed populations at home. It is interesting to be in an unmixed society that holds to many principles upon which our country was founded. It is a good thing to have changes in the personnel about us for thoughts are broadened by such contacts.

Never, excepting in Sweden, have I seen streets as blue with overalls as in Waynesville. I wonder if we are grateful enough to the inventor of overalls. Who was he? Such a generally-used and useful garment cannot be matched.

Many strangers come to Waynesville to regain their health. They may be lonely, suffering, and full of care. But those that are well, might make their visit worth while by returning some benefits for those received. We can help the churches, hospital, and welfare agencies, according to our means. As we go, we could leave behind books that we have or clothing to be distributed to the poor. But the best thing that we could leave is a friendly impression. We can scarcely urge harmony among nations until we sustain that quality at home."

Miss Albright Back From Peace Conference

Miss Anne Albright, of Waynesville, dean of women of Western Carolina Teachers College, has recently returned from the summer session on international law, which was sponsored by the University of Michigan by the Carnegie Endowment for Peace.
Miss Albright was one of 37 invited delegates. For five weeks she and others have studied various phases of international law and heard lectures by authorities.
"The general feeling of the conference, despite the conflicting theories held by lecturers was that, in time we will have world peace," Miss

It was with great sadness and a feeling of intense shock that the Lake Junaluska community learned of the death of Earl Wyatt, July 5th.

Earl, a member of the graduating class of 1938, of W. T. H. S., was a boy of a lovable disposition, and respected by everyone he knew. He was born Oct. 8, 1920, and attended school at Junaluska Elementary school and Waynesville High.

At the time of his death, he was a member of the Boy Scouts of America, and held the office of scribe of Troop 8, of Lake Junaluska.

He was the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Wyatt, of Lake Junaluska, a great grandson of Rev. Wm. Pruett, of Waynesville.

He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Wyatt and two sisters, Stella Mae and Bellma, and a host of relatives and friends who mourn his untimely passing.

Albright said. "They, however, set no formulas for attaining world peace and they admitted confusion as to the present situation and the prospects for the future."

Mrs. W. W. Norman, of Griffin, Ga., is expected this week to visit her daughter, Mrs. Richard N. Barber, Jr.
