Rev. O. C. Landrum Accepts Call To Tifton, Georgia

Former Hazelwood Pastor To Take Up New Duties On July First

Rev. O. C. Landrum has accepted a call to become pastor of the Tifton, Ga., Presbyterian church. The former Hazelwood pastor will take up his new work there on July first.

He and Mrs. Landrum visited Tifton several weeks ago, at which time he preached at both the morning and night services. The congregation extended a call on that day. This was exactly 11 years to the day when he preached his first sermon in Hazelwood.

Tifton is 107 miles south of Macon, and about 65 miles from Florida, on the main highway to the west coast. The town has a population of about 7,000. It is the largest tobacco market in the state, and a big cotton marketing center. It is also the home of Baldwin College and a state institution, Abraham, and the costal plains experiment station.

Rev. and Mrs. Landrum left Monday for a month's visit with his parents in Jackson, Ky. They plan to return here about June 10 or 15 and leave for their new home on June 25.

The membership of the Hazelwood church when he came here was 56. The church now has 134. During the past year, 55 new members have been received at the Hazelwood and White Oak churches. He was also pastor of the latter church.

Only 60 of the 3,180 churches of the denomination baptized more than did Hazelwood and White Oak during 1939.

The Hazelwood congregation began the erection of a new church in 1936, and to date have raised approximately $7,000 on the building.

Wipe enamel stove surfaces daily with a cloth dipped in warm water and mild soap suds. This helps keep the stove in good order and will keep enamel shiny. Wipe when the stove is cold; if done when warm, the enamel may crack.

See that all electric fixtures that are handled while a person works near water or water pipes, are well insulated to prevent possibility of shocks or burns.

Fold empty paper bags in original creases and clip them together with a clothespin and they will always be ready when you need them.

When planting tiny seeds a medicine dropper is a help. Take off rubber bulb, fill medicine dropper with seeds, then replace bulb and squeeze it to drop seeds into furrows.

For a canape, spread small round slices of brown bread with pimento cheese and garnish each with a slice of pimento stuffed olive.

If your heating plant goes balky, investigate first the draft. Better call in your local heating contractor if you think the draft is inadequate.

At Park Theatre

TODAY

"Black Friday," heralded as the newest idea in horror pictures, with Boris Karloff and Bela Lugosi in the starring roles, comes today to the Park Theatre.

Said to be different from previous horror films both in story and technique, "Black Friday" finds both the stars and their supporting players appearing without the "weird" make-up effects they have used in the past.

A trail of murder unique on the screen is started by Karloff, who as a famous surgeon performs a daring operation by transplanting part of the brain of a criminal into the brain of a quiet little college professor.

Plays Two Parts

Stanley Ridges, celebrated character actor, plays the difficult role of the professor whose dual brain transforms him at times into a ruthless killer. Like Karloff and Lugosi, Ridges achieves his changes of character entirely by voice and facial expression.

FRIDAY

Announced as a blend of romance and comedy with colorful dance revues, "Ma! He's Making Eyes at Me," opens Friday at the Park Theatre.

Tow Brown, as a live-wire young press agent with a million ideas, and Constance Moore as the pretty Broadway model who becomes the sensation of the hour, share romantic honors in the swiftly paced screenplay.

Action in the story revolves around the efforts of Brown to make American girls more fashion conscious, and save a swank Fifth Avenue shop from bankruptcy. Colorful revue numbers in the picture feature comedy routines by Mitchell and Chamberlain, the dancing of Vivien Fay, noted Broadway ballerina, and a swing version of "The Blue Danube," sung by Marie Greene and her "Merry Minstrels" of radio fame.

SATURDAY

"Rovin' Tumbleweeds" is the latest Gene Autry western and a rare western it is. The story seems to be a conglomeration of current productions. The problem of the migratory workers sends Mr. Autry to Washington as Congressman to push through a bill on flood control, which is at the heart of the migratory situation in Mr. Autry's balliwick. At the beginning of the film and at its end the rains come in copious quantity.

The picture's resemblance to the typical western lies only in the habits of the star, Smiley Burnette and some other cowboy characters, and in a scene laid at a rodeo. There is quite a deal of singing in the film with Autry as the soloist and the "Pals of the Golden West" as accompanists and a chorus. Mary Carlisle, the girl in the case, plays a radio reporter, and the secretary to Mr. Autry in the nation's capital. Douglas Dumbrille is the villain who reforms at the last moment when he is forced to help stem the flood.

OWL SHOW SATURDAY

Can science find a way to suspend life by freezing? Can human beings be put in "cold storage" and brought back to life many years later?

These startling questions are the subject of one of the most horrendous of the horror epics. "The Man With Nine Lives" starring Boris Karloff in what has been hailed as the most terrifying portrayal ever screened, surpassing even "Frankenstein" and "The Man They Could Not Hang" for spine-chilling qualities, the new film bases its story on the newly discovered "freeze cure."

The drama opens when a young scientist, Roger Pryor, and his fiancée, Jo Ann Sayers, attempt to find out about the work of a mysterious Dr. Kravaal who was years ahead of his time by predicting the cure of disease by the lowering of body temperatures. The couple go to the deserted island home of the scientist and there they find the secret of Kravaal's mysterious disappearance some ten years before.

In an underground ice-chamber hewn out of a glacier, they find the body of Dr. Kravaal, played by Boris Karloff. In a state of suspended animation. They revive the seemingly dead scientist and four others whom he has taken with him into the state of "frozen sleep."

SUNDAY

With loud "Yippees!" ringing in the air, Jane Withers and Gene Autry gallop into town in "Shooting High," the colorful action romance of the West.

In this gay film Hollywood's favorite commedienne and the screen's No. 1 Cowboy star ride like demons and shoot like sixty to corral a desperate band of bank robbers, break up a family feud, arrange a love match for Gene and sing as only they can.

Five tuneful melodies are sprinkled through "Shooting High." Gene had a hand in composing three of them. He wrote "Only One Love in a Lifetime" in collaboration with Johnnie Marvin and Harry Tobias and "Little Old Band of Gold" in collaboration with Charles Newman and Fred Glickman. These two songs serve as solo numbers for Gene. His third song, "Shanty of Dreams," was written in collaboration with Johnnie Marvin. It is one of the two songs sung together by Jane and Gene. Another Withers-Autry duet, "Wanderers," was written by Felix Bernard and Paul Francis Webster.

Jane has a rollicking number entitled "On the Rancho with My Pancho." This number was composed by Sidney Clare and Harry Akst.

MONDAY AND TUESDAY

There will be thrills and excitement a plenty at the Park Monday and Tuesday when the stirring film, "Virginia City" makes its local debut. The picture co-stars Errol Flynn and Miriam Hopkins as two people whose conflicting missions journey across the Painted Desert.

Errol Flynn as a tough, two-fisted adventurer is said to have surpassed even his success in "Dodge City," and a new, vivid Miriam Hopkins is revealed in the part of a dancing, fighting spirt-fire.

"Virginia City" is an intriguing story of gold-smuggling during the final stages of the Civil War. Errol Flynn, a Union Intelligence officer, escapes from a Confederate prison and learns of a conspiracy to smuggle five million dollars worth of gold out of Virginia City to aid the South, but he doesn't realize that Miriam Hopkins, with whom he is deeply in love, is one of the conspirators. The situation becomes even more exciting when Humphrey Bogart, as a notorious bandit attacks the Union Garrison outside of Virginia City and the gold caravan starts its mad dash during the raid. A thrilling story of an unwritten chapter in the history of the Old West—"Virginia City" will make a top rating on the long list of great Warner films.

WEDNESDAY

Produced in 1932 as a comedy melodrama under the title "One Way Passage" and starring William Powell and Kay Francis, Warner Brothers again has taken the original story by Robert Lord and made it into a romantic melodrama with George Brent and Merle Oberon in the leading roles. In this version the comedy has been limited to the portrayals by Frank McHugh and Eric Blore.

The picture's innate appeal is to women, especially women who are fans of the love story type of magazine.

Wite Preservers

To give an invalid an alcohol rub, take a small bottle, put alcohol in it and put a sprinkler top on it. Just the right amount of liquid may thus be shaken out, and none will be spilled on the bed clothes.
