With the weather taking a turn to the damp side, it is not as yet definite whether or not the July 4th (today's) athletic events will be staged between Canton and Waynesville as previously announced. is more than saturated with water and unless there is a letup in the showers and some miracle to dry the ground it looks like the Softball games are definitely off. As this was being written yesterday the rain continued to fall and the athletes of this section went around all day with a long face, are most got 3 hits in 5 trips. of them were looking forward to the Fourth with enthusiasm.

The wet weather not only put the Fourth activities out of commission but played havoc with the regular schedule of play in the Hazelwood, Jones and Smith. softball league. There were several rained out games already on the shelf that have not been played off, and with several more that have not been played for the same reason the standings of the teams looks rather ragged. One team especially has had hard luck in this line. Esso has had three games rained out recently and have had no chance to make up the lost time.

The Asheville Tourists will display their baseball nine under a flood of high powered lights this Friday for the first time in several years for McCormick Field is grac ed with electricity. It is expected that additional seating will have to be provided to take care of the fans that are planning to attend Asheville's night baseball games. This will also give local fans a chance to occasionally view a game or two under the arcs after the day's work is complete.

Several years ago, if our memory is correct, Asheville had night baseball, but for some reason discontinued the after night games. It is believed that there were not enough paid admissions to justify the added expense of the high powered bulbs. But now that the Tourists have winning teams and are making a name for themselves and on top of that fans in this section are getting used to sitting out under the lights at night watching softball, baseball's first cousin, the attendance at McCormick Field will be increased over the day-time

It is reported in higher circles that boxing is on the down grade, but from the attendance that was reported at the two bouts this week it looks like there is either some mistake or that these particular fighters had a lot of friends to stay with them when they went from the top to the bottom.

Down in Atlanta last Monday night saw the king of pugilistics start his climb up the ladder to a comeback, Jack Dempsey entered the ring against a wrestler, "Cowboy" Luttrell, and in two rounds walked out leaving the Cowboy stranded on the canvas. It is not known how far Dempsey intends to try to advance in his renewal of the game that he made a name for himself playing, but from all indications he has not forgotten how to use his fists, and before his career is over great things are expected to come from his comeback into fighting. It was also proven that Jack's popularity has not wained to any great extent by the large crowd that whooped and hollered at the ringside in Atlanta.

Another bout that drew close to 23,000 fans was the Galento-Baer fight last Tuesday at Jersey City, N. J. Baer took the scrap in the eighth round when Galento failed to answer the bell in the eighth round, the reason being Doctor's orders. At the end of the seventh round, a doctor entered the ring and examined the cuts that Baer had inflicted on the face of the beer drinker and pronounced him unfit to carry on thereby giving Baer a Technical Knockout, and the No. 1 challenger of the Brown Bomber for the world championship.

It is predicted that Baer is none too anxious to tackle Louis again after a thorough licking the last time he encountered the negro, but anyway the defeat of Galento puts him in the first string to challenge for the title.

In the bout between Two Ton Tony Galento, the rules of boxing were not exactly carried out by either fighter, and on one occasion Galento took advantage of his head is illegal and gave the round to to "butt" Bear in the mouth which Baer, who had it anyway on points. Baer had the habit of hitting on the break from a clinch, which also is against the rules, so they were both fighting out the grudge

Boys Take Flag From Plant Pole

Workmen this week are building a cage around the base of the flag pole at the Erkraft plant in Hazelwood, in an effort to avoid a repetition of what happened Sunday, when two boys attempted to make way with the large flag which flies daily over the plant.

R. V. Erk, owner of the plant, saw two boys playing near the plant Sunday, and after mailing important as being able to think some letters, passed the plant, only to find the flag down and the boys scampering down the road. or prankers from

On the Credit Side of the Ledger

The advertising campaign of the North Carolina Department of Conservation and Development can be credited with increasing substantially revenues of the State and income of its citizens.

On the credit side, the campaign has meant more tourists, more factories, more wages, more gasoline and sales tax revenues and more purchasing power for the State as a whole.

Tourists are now spending more than $100,000,000 annually in North Carolina, nearly three times as much as they spent prior to launching the Advertising Program in 1937.

Investment in new factories and additions to existing plants since the campaign started totals approximately $100,000,000 This has meant an increase of approximately $40,000,000 annually in pay rolls.

Gasoline and sales tax collections from tourists now total over $1,000,000 annually. From this source alone the State is receiving $10.00 for every $1.00 in vested in the Advertising Program For further information and tangible results on the North Carolina Advertising Campaign, write
