Miss Ruth Curtis Robeson Weds J. Weaver Kirkpatrick

Of interest to a wide circle of friends and relatives in this state was the marriage of Miss Ruth Curtis Robeson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Robeson, Jr., of Merry Point, Warwick County, Va., and granddaughter of Prof. and Mrs. E. J. Robeson, of Waynesville, to James Weaver Kirkpatrick, of Durham, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Handy Kirkpatrick, of Canton, which took place on Saturday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock, November the 30th, at Grace Methodist church, Newport News, Va.

The vows were pronounced by the Rev. John C. Orr, of Morristown, Tenn. Mr. Orr was the officiating minister at the marriage of the bride's grandparents, Prof. and Mrs. Robeson in 1889.

The church decorations were Southern similar, interspersed with palms and lighted entirely by cathedral candles.

Mrs. George D. Cole played the wedding music and was accompanied on the violin by Howard L. Boatwright, Jr., who played "Pania Angelicus" by Oscar Franck, "Libestode," from Tristan and Isolde by Wagner, and "At Dawning." The bridal chorus from Lohengrin was used as processional and Mendelssohn's wedding march as recessional.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a bridal gown of Duchess ivory satin made with long sleeves and square neckline edged with Chantilly lace. The severe lines of the dress was emphasized by white satin cording and long sweeping train. Her veil of illusion which fell to the length of the train was arranged with a cluster of orange blossoms. She carried butterfly orchids in cascade arrangements. She wore a pearl armband and earrings which belonged to her great-great grandmother, Mrs. James Hardaway, and have been worn by all successive brides in the family.

She had as her maid of honor her sister, Mrs. Frances Ferguson Robeson, who was dressed in white silk faille made with very full skirt and three-quarter length sleeves. The waistline was finished with a ruffled peplum and the square neckline was edged with Chantilly lace ruffling. She wore a white tulle cap with a poinsetta in the center and carried a cascade arrangement of poinsettias.

The bridesmaids, Miss Allen Sherrod Curtis, of Augusta, Ga., Miss Sarah Ferguson Kirkpatrick, of Fort Myers, Fla.; Miss Margaret Bliss, Ashby, and Miss Jane Ruffin Powell, of Newport News, wore white silk faille made similar to the maid of honor, and white tulle caps with poinsettia trim. They all carried cascade bouquets of poinsettias centered with a lighted red taper, and wore a string of pearls, gift of the bride.

Miss Martha Richards Robeson, sister of the bride, was flower girl. She was dressed in white faille made with square neckline and Chantilly lace trim. She carried a miniature bouquet of poinsettias.

J. H. Kirkpatrick, of Canton, served his son as best man and the groomsmen were J. H. Kirkpatrick, Jr., of Angio, Ind., brother of the bride; G. C. Palmer, Howard Stamey, Joe Palmer, Raleigh, N. C.; Miss Frances Steel, Chester, Miss Martha Holloway, Miss Pattie Bounds, Norfolk; Miss Emily Palmer, Floyd Nesbitt, Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Kirkpatrick, Miss Mary Frances Kirkpatrick, Thomas Kirkpatrick, of Fort Myers, Fla., and Miss Allen Cutts, of Augusta, Ga.

In Town for the Day

By VERA WINSTON

DO RIGHT by your wardrobe with the aid of a smart town suit. The right suit fits into the luncheon picture, and with the aid of luxurious accessories is prepared to make quite a splurge after dark. For this reason, some of the best town suits are unfurled, as is this model. Heavy quilted satin makes the double collar and epaulettes of this suit which is buttoned high under the collar. The seaming slants out over the hipline to form two slit pockets. With the suit is worn a black quilted satin blouse and a matching beret.
