King's Heart to Battle

In Robert Bruce's last years he wished to join a military expedition to the Holy Land. Knowing that he would die before fulfilling his desire, he requested his friend, Lord James Douglas, to take his heart after death and carry it into battle. Douglas placed the heart in a silver casket and carried it into the battle in which he perished. One of his knights recovered Bruce's heart and took it back to Scotland, where it is buried in Melrose abbey.

When placing out-of-town calls you will always get good service, but you will get the QUICKEST service if you do it this way ...

In the case of a Personto-Person call,* first give the Long Distance Operator the name of the place you are calling, including the state, and then the name of the person you wish to reach and the telephone number if you know it. If you do not know the telephone number, give the person's address.

Give your own telephone number when the operator asks for it. Your information given in this order enables the operator immediately to start making the connection.

When placing a Station-to-Station call, make this clear by first saying, "Station-to-Station." Then give the name of the place, the state and the telephone number. If you do not know the telephone number, give the operator the name and address under which the telephone is listed.

Give your own telephone number when the operator asks for it.
