

Rambling Around

By W. CURTIS RUSS
Bits of this, that and the other picked up here, there and yonder.

W. H. F. Millar uses a plane for travel perhaps more than any other person in Waynesville—or Haywood county.

He has to make frequent trips to Chicago, New York, Boston and other points, and frequently he does not have time to keep appointments except by flying.

His experiences are quite varied, and some rather interesting. The other day, for instance, he returned to Waynesville to see his son receive the American Legion award at the high school commencement, and left immediately for Spartanburg, caught a plane at two o'clock that morning for a northern point for a business conference that same morning.

Flying out of Chicago early one morning, the plane encountered fog all the way to Detroit, and then right over Detroit it looked as if one had taken a knife and carved a hole in the fog, as the great city was free of all signs of fog.

Immediately after taking off, the plane was enveloped in fog again, and not until it started to land at Cleveland did the fog lift—the same as in Detroit.

Approaching New York in the early dawn, the plane flew in clear air between two banks of billowy clouds that reflected the rising sun. Below was a rainbow . . . not the half circle as we see it from the earth, but a complete circle with the shadow of the plane in the center. . . a sight that will long be remembered.

Mr. Millar's only fear in flying, is driving to ah from the airports in a car. Once in a plane, he settles down and relaxes until he has to ride in a ca again.

While Mr. Millar is a lawyer, he likes his garden, and in talking to fellow gardeners the other day dropped the suggestion that an onion planted in a hill with cucumber seed is a sure preventative against cut worms and trouble.

lesome bugs on the cucumber vines.

And speaking of gardens, Frank Davis says its useless to plant beans in Haywood until the 10th of May. By test, he says that beans planted on May first and May tenth matured the same day. The early plantings are in danger of frosts. Frank also vows that chickens will not eat bean seed, which was a new one on me.

If you are a victim of hay fever, you can appreciate the sentiment in these lines, penned by Mrs. Emmett in the Cedartown, Ga., Standard:
"I sneezed a sneeze into the air;
It fell to earth, I know not where,
But hard and cold were looks of those
In whose vicinity I snooze."

Broadening Christian Horizons: The Antioch Movement

HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON 5-21

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL
(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for June 1 is Acts 11:19-30, the Golden Text being Rom. 1:16. "For I am not ashamed of the gospel: for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth; to the Jew first, and also to the Greek.")

THE FIRST reference in our lesson takes us back to the time of the martyrdom of Stephen, that saintly young man who died with a prayer on his lips for the forgiveness of his murderers.

After his death the disciples scattered, some going as far as Phoenicia, Cyprus and Antioch. Phoenicia is now called Syria and is directly north of Palestine.

Antioch was a very important city. It was situated on the river Orontes, less than 20 miles by land, but more than 40 miles by water, from the Mediterranean. It was a magnificent city, being enlarged and beautified by many of the ancient rulers, and having a reputation for learning as well as for being a center for merchants and travelers from all the then known corners of the earth. It was also a luxurious and wicked city.

At first the word of God was preached to the Jews only, but some of the teachers, St. Luke tells us, were men of Cyprus and Cyrene, the latter the chief city of Libya, in North Africa, which had a large Jewish population. When they came to Antioch they talked also to the Greeks, because they spoke the Greek language. Many were converted. "And the hand of the Lord was with them; and a great number believed and turned unto the Lord."

Barnabas Sent to Antioch
When this news reached Jerusalem, they sent Barnabas to Antioch. Barnabas, you remember, was the young man who spoke for Saul or Paul when the followers in Jerusalem were suspicious of him after his sudden conversion. Barnabas was "a good man, and full of the Holy Ghost and of faith," and when he reached Antioch he was glad because of the work done there, and "exhorted them all, that with purpose of heart they would cleave unto the Lord."

Conditions at Antioch must have made Barnabas think that besides the earnest souls who were already preaching the Christ there, they needed the brilliant mind of such a man as Saul. So Barnabas went to Tarsus, where Saul had been for some years, and brought him back to Antioch with him.

For a whole year, St. Luke tells us, the two worked among the people of Antioch, preaching and teaching, and many people were turned to Christ. And it was at Antioch at this time that the followers of Jesus were first called Christians. The term distinguishes them from the Jews and became their common title among the Gentiles. We are told that the word combines Jewish thought with Greek and Latin language, bearing witness to the universality of the religion. The idea of Christ or Messiah is Jewish; the substantive "Christ" (Christos) is Greek; and the adjectival ending "ian" (-ianus) Latin. The Jewish fellow countrymen called the Christians Nazarenes or Galileans. The word Christian implies union and close association with Christ.

No Jealousy in Barnabas
Barnabas was a real Christian. There was no small, petty jealousy in him. He was an earnest and zealous worker for the cause of Christ, and had no self-seeking or self-glorifying spirit. He only sought what would benefit the cause. This is evidenced by his going for Saul, who he probably knew was a more brilliant man than he and could help the church more than he (Barnabas) could do.

St. Luke further tells us that from Jerusalem prophets came to Antioch. It may have been that they came because of persecution in Jerusalem. One whose name was Agabus, stood up among them and prophesied that there would be a great famine—which actually occurred in the reign of Darius. To show the spirit of the early church, the disciples, most of whom were poor people, determined to send relief to the afflicted part of the country. Each gave according to his ability. It was sent, according to St. Luke again, by the hands of Barnabas and Saul.

Barnabas, by the way, was introduced to us as a Levite of Cyprus, who sold land that he possessed and devoted the proceeds to the use of the church.

High Wool Prices May Prove To Be Big Factor For More Sheep Raising

News From Bethel

Vernon Sorrells, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sorrells, of Bethel, won fourth place in the Future Farmers of America livestock judging contest held at Waynesville last Saturday.

Young Sorrells will be one of the four boys to represent the western part of the state in the state FFA judging contest to be held in Raleigh June 13. The local livestock judging contest was held between forty schools located in the western part of the state.

Other boys representing the Bethel FFA chapter in the judging contest were, Wayne Stamey, Norman Pless and Wilson Caldwell.

The meeting times of the Pigeon Valley Grange have been changed from the second and fourth Monday nights to the second and fourth Thursday night. The hour has also been changed from 7:30 to 8:00 o'clock.

All boys who successfully completed the work in defense classes at Bethel under the instruction of George Stamey and Hugh Cathey have been issued vocational training record certificates.

These cards show the units of training completed and the hours spent on each job. Two cards are filled out for each boy, one for the boy and one for the Federal Security Agency, U. S. Office of Education, Washington, D. C.

Bank To Observe Memorial Day Friday

The First National Bank will be closed Friday in observance of National Memorial Day, which will be observed by all governmental agencies and banks throughout the nation.

Rising wool prices have a new interest to the sheep raiser in North Carolina, according to I. Case, extension animal husbandman of N. C. State College. The demand for wool fabric army use and the high consumer incomes have caused to create an unusual demand for woolen goods. The weekly production of wool in February was highest in 23 years.

The kind of wool produced in North Carolina farms is quoted now several cents higher than it was last year. According to quotations near the first of 3-8 and quarter blood wool worth nine cents a pound, more than at the same time in 1940.

Whether Tar Heel sheepmen get as much for their wool this year as they did last year depends upon the quality of the whole season as well as shrinkage. Mr. Case explained that produced in Western North Carolina shrinks less than does produced in the Coastal plain. For this reason, the wool growers are willing to pay more for mountain-produced wool.

Then, too, Mr. Case explained further, the mountain wool is generally more free of burrs, trash and other foreign matter which lowers the value.

"This does not mean that the sheep of the East cannot produce practically as good wool as do the sheep in the mountains," Case said, "but it is true that the eastern growers generally do not get fleeces on a par with the mountain wool."

Co-operative marketing has helped to bring higher prices to Western farmers, the State animal husbandman said. Wool "pools," so called, because the farmers pool their fleeces so as to put large lots on the market at one time, operating in Watauga, Allegheny, Avery, Yancey, Transylvania, and other mountain counties.
