Population Of U. S. Goes Up 1,200,000

The Census Bureau indicated this week that the Nation has picked up about 1,200,000 population since the 1940 count and has nearly 133,000,000 resident now.

The new population figures were based on an estimate that immigration and excess of births over deaths added about 93,000 to the population in each of the months after the population was actually counted in the decennial census April 1, 1940.
