U.S. Patrol Over Greenland's Icy Mountains

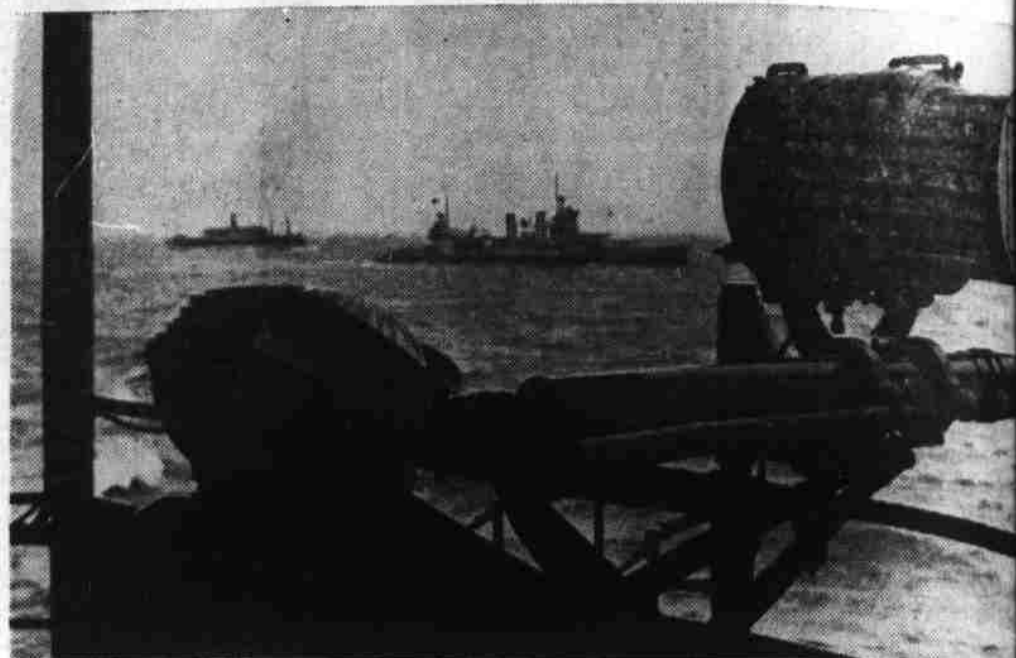

In solitary splendor a U. S. Navy PBY air patrol plane wings its way on a flight over our far northern outpost in Greenland. Far below is nothing but icy wastes as winter begins slowly to close in. This is an official U. S. Navy photo.

Another Milestone

Oscar, famed chef of the Waldorf Astoria in New York, is shown on the eve of his 75th birthday, which he is celebrating with a gala charity ball for the benefit of the U. S. Navy. Oscar has been with the noted hotel for 48 years, ten of which were with the new Waldorf.

The U.S. Navy on Patrol in Iceland Waters

This official U. S. Navy photo shows units of the fleet on actual patrol duty, guarding a convoy of ports and merchantmen en route to Iceland. In the foreground is a sailor on watch aboard a warship. The background is a cruiser and a transport. It was in these sea lanes that the Kearny was torpedoed.

One More Answer to Hitler

America's fast-growing two-ocean navy, greatest in the history of the world, is augmented by another warship as the submarine Greenglass goes down the ways at New London, Conn.

Grid Star Plays Nursemaid

Vern Miller, 250-pound tackle on the Harvard football team, is to pay his way through the Cambridge, Mass., school by serving as a maid for 16-months-old Georgie Dwyer in nearby Brighton. Miller hails from Milwaukee, Wis.

Here's How Nazis Would Dismember Russia

This map shows how the Nazis plan to cut up the Russian Bear (with the aid of Japan). Germany has cut a big slice in the West for herself; a big slice in the East goes to Nippon, and what's left would be a "free" Russia under orders from Berlin. Even the name of Russia would disappear from the map. This plan was elaborated in detail by Alfred Rosenberg and his expert staff.

A Durocher to Wed

Escapes the War

Lisette Veris, stage and screen star from Budapest, Hungary, arrives at New York on the President Grant. She boarded the ship at Bombay, India.

Vacation from War

Lieut. Stanley E. Jenner tells the Overseas Press Club in New York how he regularly thumbs his nose at death. He is a member of Britain's Royal Navy Volunteer Reserve and an expert on disposal of land mines, the kind the Nazis float down by parachute to wipe out whole blocks at a clip.

Envoy to Iceland

Lincoln MacVeagh of Connecticut, nominated by President Roosevelt to be Minister to Iceland, becomes the first envoy of this rank sent to a Danish island recently occupied by American naval forces. MacVeagh recently returned to the U.S. to accept his new post in service as Minister to Greece.

Proud Moment for Morgenthau

Iceland Greets U. S. Regulars

C. F. Cablephoto

Maj. Gen. H. O. Curtis (right), commander-in-chief of the British troops in Iceland, greets Maj. Gen. Charles H. Bonesteel, commander of a field force of the U. S. army, which arrived at Reykjavik with vast supplies of equipment and materials. The Americans were reported ready to make the former Danish island one of the most formidable fortresses in the North.

Blowing Up a Spitzbergen Coal Mine

One of the British raiders who recently landed on the island of Spitzbergen north of Norway is shown here blowing up one of the coal mines there to prevent the fuel from falling into German hands. The consequence was so great that it knocked him off his feet. Seven hundred inhabitants were taken back to England.
