

Man Would Have Advantage If Clash Comes

CHARLES P. STEWART (Central Press Columnist)

In one respect, American experts concede, Japan is rather advantageously placed in the event of a clash between the United States, and that's respect out of a consideration...

tail, errors which prevent their replicas from functioning just as they should. Their household and public utilities, for example, everlastingly are getting out of whack.

Good To Look At

Illustratively, I crossed once from San Francisco to Yokohama on one of Toyo Kisen Kaisha's (Oriental Steamship company's) liners, one of a considerable newly built fleet. To the eye, it was an 'elegant big boat. But presently I ascertained that, when those craft were launched, in Japanese yards, there proved to have been some sort of miscalculation as a result of which it was practically impossible to keep 'em floating right side up. It finally was managed, by ballasting 'em enormously where it did the most good, but they were tricky critters at that.

Another thing, the Mikado's aviators always have had an extraordinary high percentage of crashes. One of themselves, a friend of mine, explained it to me, at the time I was there, on the ground that his countrymen are so frightfully "cruel to machinery".

It also frequently is mentioned that the islands' cities are very vulnerable to attacks by enemy planes, because they're so largely built of wood. To say that's to put it mildly. They're largely built of paper, held together by a few supporting sticks. A bunch of flyers from Vladivostok or from an American carrier off shore unquestionably could make a bonfire of the whole country as fast as they could scoot.

Its merchant fleet could be bottled up or shot full of holes in short order, of course.

It could be shut off from all its sources of military supplies, which it has to import, and so could its source of grub supplies, from the mainland. As for its financial status, it could be killed dead—is nearly so now.

Nevertheless, the job would be an awful pest to Uncle Sam.

Some Help

He'd get some help, to be sure—principally from China. Britain might spare him a few men-o'-war, and he'd be provided with bases on the Chinese mainland coast and at Singapore and in the Philippines, the Dutch East Indies, Australia and New Zealand.

The Chinese, though, would be most useful to him. England and its dominions are too busy elsewhere to be very effective and the Philippines and Dutch East India haven't the sea strength to supplement such a campaign. The Chinese, however, would count, as a land adjunct. Perhaps Siberian Russia would, too.

For all that, it's a mess that would be a nuisance and a darned expensive one.

It would be meaner yet for Japan, but what do those doty militarists care?

Farmers And Others Asked To Sell Scrap Iron

An urgent appeal to the farmers of Haywood county to market their scrap iron as a part of a national scrap iron collection campaign was made this week by J. C. Lynn, chairman of the Haywood County USDA Defense Board. The iron and steel collected will be used in the national defense program.

Mr. Lynn said that the secretary of agriculture has called American farmers to co-operate in the national campaign now underway to help provide necessary iron and steel supplies for the defense program. Information received by the defense board emphasizes that America needs all the scrap iron and steel it is possible to get. Steel, it was pointed out, is needed not only for production of munitions, but for making farm machinery.

Farmers and others are being asked to market their scrap iron at current prices, which are those that have been set by OPM. Mr. Lynn emphasized that the government does not want farmers to scrap useful machinery. Where machinery is being kept for spare parts, it is suggested that parts be taken off the machine or article and stored, and the remainder of the metal sold for scrap.

The scrap collection campaign is being conducted through commercial scrap iron dealers, as they are in a position to sort this material and to prepare it so that it can be used without further sorting when it reaches the steel mills.

Any one who has scrap iron for sale is advised to get in touch with the chairman or any of the county USDA defense board or with the county farm agents' office.

The way Hitler has been taking over nation after nation since his drive on Poland—rolling into one domain and scaring fits out of the next until he got ready to take it—reminds us of the note a dotting mother sent along with her precious little son the first time he entered school: "Little Claude is so sensitive," said the note. "Don't ever punish him. Just slap the boy next to him, and that will frighten Claude."

Jerry Rogers Urges Tests For Auto Drivers

Many motorists know traffic laws, rules and regulations, but cannot apply them when they get under the wheel, according to Jerry Rogers, chief of police of Hazelwood. Every driver should be given a driving test before getting a driver's license.

"I would like to see a law which would require a checkup every 3 months of vehicles on the highways," he told Rotarians last Friday.

After doing those two things, Chief Rogers would send every person caught driving while drunk, to the roads, and not accept a fine, and he would make a severe penalty for fast driving.

Until something of that nature is put into force, this country need not expect anything but a continual rise in highway traffic accidents, he pointed out.

"I don't believe in fixing tickets. I don't care who the person is, if he or she is violating the traffic laws I say they should be arrested, and no partiality shown," he said.
