How to Distinguish Nationality of Aircraft

Civilian air raid spotters will have no difficulty distinguishing Axis planes from those of the United Nations if they memorize the markings illustrated above. American and British planes have designs of red, white and blue, and Russia has a red star. Watchers on the southern border occasionally may see the red triangle of Mexico. Axis raiders are easily spotted through the familiar black cross and swastika of Germany, the round red rising sun emblem of Japan and the Roman fasces borne by Italian planes.

Blackie Bear

THE TWO WOMEN COMFORT EACH OTHER

Story 129

Whoever it was that first said "Misery loves company," will never have to take it back, if you would take Mrs. Man's or Aunt Judy's word for it. Jay Bird will tell you the same thing, for he paid a little visit to the Man home, the next day after the Pepper Party. You certainly know by this time that it is the habit of Blackie Bear to "plan his work, and work his plan," and he always checks up on his "works" to see just how his plans came through. So he asked Jay Bird to go over and see how Rover Dog's eyes were coming along, after the pepper dust had been washed out. If his eyes were not all right, he would have Doctor Coon fix some eyewash for them, and Who-Who Owl would take it over that night.

Jay Bird found that Mr. Man had gone back to town to get some more of the things—sugar, coffee and shells—that were lost off of the wagon yesterday. Yes, he had gone back to town, even after telling his wife that he would never leave her again, last night when she cried so; but first he had gone over to get Aunt Judy to come and stay with Mrs. Man while he was gone. And he learned that Mr. Man had left the gun with Mrs. Man, so she could shoot that "Man-as-high-as-a-house" or Blackie Bear, or any other robber that came fooling around her place.

And Jay Bird found that it is a fact that misery really does love company, and that those two good women had a "miserably good time" together, while they told their troubles to each other. Yes, they huddled up in the kitchen and they talked and talked and talked about the Pepper Party, and every once in a while Mrs. Man would crack the door open, and peep into the yard to see if anybody had carried the dogs away. (Yes, it was DOGS—two of them—for Aunt Judy had brought Boy Dog along.) But always both dogs were sitting or lying right close to the open door of Rover's house, so they could jump in and slam the door, if Blackie or the other robbers came in sight. That's the real truth of the matter, for Jay Bird heard them talking about it, though Mrs. Man and Aunt Judy thought they were just ready to eat up a robber.

On any ordinary day, neither dog would have had any such a "company" dinner given him at his own home as he got that day. Not just scraps that were left after the women got through, but just as good dinner as was on the table. Mrs. Man and Aunt Judy thought they deserved a good dinner for sitting there and watching for trouble all day, and that if trouble should come, they would be better able to fight it if they had eaten a good dinner.

And Jay Bird ate his own dinner from the garden, and left. There was nothing else to do or see over there, so far as he could tell, but there might be something going on at Uncle Joe's house, where he was all alone. That good neighbor might be a little lonely, with even Boy Dog gone, and maybe Blackie would want to send him some company, or do something else for his entertainment. You never can tell what use Blackie will make of even the simplest sort of news.

Jay Bird's pretty wings quit wiggling at about eleven o'clock, and settled him by the water trough by the well at Uncle Joe's, where he wet his throat, and then looked about. Of course Uncle Joe ought to have been at work in his potato patch, at that hour, but was he? Indeed he wasn't: he was stretched out on the bench beside the water shelf on the porch, where everything was shaded by the old walnut tree, and he was sound asleep and snoring, and the grass in the potato patch was doing a lot of growing.

Jay Bird thought it was too early for Uncle Joe to be napping, and he was certainly good for another hour or two of it; but it wasn't his business to do anything more about it than to tell Blackie. It looked a lot like sleeping on the job, and Blackie never cared for that sort of sleep. Uncle Joe couldn't make crops for himself nor Blackie, by doing that way. So Jay Bird was on his way to the Big Tree.

Rulings Relative To Service Of Medical Students

Third and fourth-year students in acceptable medical schools and first year internes may obtain reserve commissions in the army and navy and then will be permitted to complete their medical training, including one year of internship, before being ordered to active duty, it was learned here this week by the local draft board.

Such medical students and internes may be deferred by their local boards in Class 11-A pending receipt of their commissions, but all who are eligible for a commission and do not apply may be considered for classification in Class 1-A if they are not deferred for other reasons and are found qualified for general military service.

Third and fourth-year medical students and internes who are rejected after applying for commissions and also first and second-year medical students and those registrants who have been accepted as students in a medical school, may be deferred in Class 11-A as long as their school officials certify that they give indication they will become qualified medical practitioners. No group deferment is permissible by law, and each case, must be decided by a local board.

Medical students and internes accepted by the army are given commissions as second lieutenants pending graduation when they become first lieutenants in the army medical reserve corps. Those accepted by the navy are commissioned as ensigns until graduation when they become lieutenants (junior grade) in the navy medical reserve corps.

Number Of Haywood Scouts Receive Awards At Monthly Court Of Honor

2 Of Mountaineer Staff Attending Newspaper Meet

W. Curtis Russ, editor of the Waynesville Mountaineer, leaves this morning for Chapel Hill, where he will attend the eighteenth annual Newspaper Institute held by the N. C. Press Association, which is expected to draw a large attendance of editors.

Five nationally known headlines in addition to a number of well known newspaper men of the state will take part on the program. Among the speakers will be Walter Lippman, Josephus Daniels, Paul Patterson, publisher of the Baltimore "Sunpapers," and Raymond B. Howard, president of the National Editorial Association.

Mr. Russ will lead a discussion on "Advertising," at the clinic which will be conducted for non-dailies. As a past president of the state organization, he will also attend the breakfast Friday morning for the past presidents, honoring Josephus Daniels.

Mr. Russ will be accompanied by Mrs. Russ, his young daughter, Marguerite Russ Mrs. T. L. Gwyn, associate editor of The Mountaineer, and Miss Myrtle Bennett, sister of Mrs. Russ, of Hendersonville.

Phillip Moore, of Canton, was presented the highest award in scouting, that of Eagle Scout, by Carlton Peyton, of Canton at the district court of honor held in Waynesville last Tuesday night.

After the court of honor adjourned the district committee held its regular monthly meeting. Also the scoutmasters of this district had the first series of five monthly meetings to discuss Emergency Service Training in the troops.

A. W. Allen, scout executive of Daniel Boone Council, made the Tenderfoot awards. Those reaching the first rung of the scouting ladder were Harry May, of Canton Troop 1 and W. C. Johnson, of Canton Troop 4.

Dr. G. M. Davis, of Hazelwood, made the second class award to Ruben Murr, of Canton Troop 6. William Medford, of Waynesville, presented the following merit badges: Billy Richeson, of Waynesville Troop 2, machinery, personal health, and Billie Hall, of Bethel Troop 12, poultry keeping, beef production, woodcarving, and animal industry.

Jim Hurley, scoutmaster of Canton Troop 7, awarded the rank of Star Scout to Adam Knight, of Canton Troop 6.

Billy Richeson, of Waynesville Troop 2, served as clerk of court. At the scoutmasters' meeting Jim Hurley, who attended the Emergency Service Training conference at Cullowhee, led the discussion on first aid—the troop training project for first month of the five-month training period.

The divisions of first aid discussed at this meeting were bleeding, shock, artificial respiration, use of improvised traction splints, transportation of injured, and the treatment of burns, cuts, and fractures. The group practiced artificial respiration and witnessed a demonstration of the improvised traction splint given by Jimmy Deas and Carey Wells, Eagle Scouts, of Canton. Other subjects brought up and discussed were methods of mobilization and methods of collecting waste paper.

The Haywood district committee decided at their meeting that hereafter the monthly court of honor will meet on the third Monday of each month instead of the second Tuesday.

Since the Tuesday court of honor was held before a crowd of less than fifty the committee sincerely hopes there will be a large attendance at the court of honor in Canton next month.
