

Inspection Of Cafes In County Nears Completion

lishments, and that until last year there had been no new rulings regarding the matter.

After a cafe has been notified that it does not meet the state requirements, it is closed temporarily and given a reasonable length of time to make the advised changes. If the requirements in the meantime are not met, the place is not allowed to reopen.

All cafes are required to obtain a permit to operate a cafe in Haywood county from county sanitarian free of charge after they have passed inspection. Failure to meet the requirements of a sanitary rating of at least 70 per cent or Grade C, shall be sufficient cause for revoking the permit.

After the inspections are completed in the county all grades of cafes will be posted, and will be published following each survey made by the sanitarian.

Existing cafes that do not make passing grades on the old score sheet used by the sanitarian are being closed at once to be allowed time to meet the regulations.

On the new score sheet which makes up the individual grades the cafe gets either credit or no grade. There are 24 different points of grading on the sheet and are based in numeric values.

Every precaution and protection is thrown around the public in the new regulations. Every cafe is required to sterilize their eating utensils, and the checking of glasses for lipstick with a flashlight to detect any trace left is one of the new requirements.

"This country is facing a menace as deadly as the alien enemies—strikes," said W. H. F. Millar to the Rotary Club last Friday as he discussed the national labor relations act.

Mr. Millar has represented corporations for thirty years as legal advisor, and has appeared in many cases involving the act.

"The biggest single contributing factor to the downfall of France was its labor government," Mr. Millar said, as he pointed out that sit down strikes, and its even more vicious companion, the slow down strikes were condoned.

"There are forces at work in this country which can easily deliver us into the hands of the Philistines, and Americans should never say 'It Can't Happen Here.' We must keep constant vigilance against inroads of these forces," he stressed.

"The danger to this country is not only its rearmament program is being interfered with and interrupted by those not seeking to better the condition of labor, but rather to interfere with the country's progress or to better their own selfish ends."

Mr. Millar was of the opinion that should proposed peace conference proposals between the CIO and American Federation of Labor be brought about, that John L. Lewis would emerge the victor, and present leaders of the two labor organizations would go into discard. "At that time, labor would be in the saddle, and we would have a labor government," he said.

The speaker went into the history of the National Labor Relations Act, speaking on the different amendments, and the bearing each had on labor and capital.

"The act is here to stay," he said, "although the administration of the act had been vicious."
