Haywood Ministers Hold Weekly Luncheon Meeting

Plans for daily services during the week prior to Easter were discussed at the regular weekly luncheon meeting held here on Tuesday of the Haywood county ministers of the churches co-operating in the "Go-To-Church" campaign.

Plans were also announced regarding the pre-Easter services that are to be conducted in the Waynesville township high schools the five school days of the week. It was suggested that other schools in the county be contacted with the idea of making the services a county-wide movement.

The ministers at the meeting stated that on the whole the congregations had increased on the previous Sunday. In a few cases the rain had interfered with the attendance.

Announcement was also made of the exchange of pastors, that will be made during the Go-To-Church campaign, which will not be known to the congregations until the services start.

Plans were discussed for assisting the school authorities in furnishing a pastor for the pre-Easter services.

Rev. Malcolm S. Williamson, pastor of the Waynesville Presbyterian church, was in charge of the program Tuesday.

Miss Catherine Jones, student at Owen College, Raleigh, who was called home last week on account of the death of her mother, the late Jim Jones, has returned to school and resumed her work.
