Adam and Eve: Temptation and Sin

HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL (The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for July is Genesis 3, the Golden Text being Ezekiel 18:4, "The soul that sinneth, it shall die.")

THE STORY of man's disobedience to the first command laid on him is the subject of the lesson today.

The Lord God had placed Adam and Eve in this beautiful garden here they had everything that heart could wish. There was plenty to eat without working for it. All the beasts had been named and were subservient to Adam, and life was very beautiful to Adam and Eve. Of the fruit of all trees in the garden were they permitted to eat, save one—the tree of the knowledge of good and evil.

But "the serpent was more subtle than any beast of the field which the Lord God had made." Of course serpents in our day do not speak, so it must have been an evil spirit which spoke to Eve out of the serpent's body.

"Ye, hath God said, Ye shall not eat of every tree of the garden?" he asked her.

"We may eat of the fruit of every tree in the garden except one, Eve answered—the tree of knowledge of good and evil." God said, "Ye shall not eat it, neither shall ye touch it, lest ye die."

Now God had not said just that. He had said if they ate of it they would die, not if they touched it, so you see Eve was exaggerating, if not lying. She knew very well that she should not have been standing talking to the serpent about such a thing, but have gone right away and avoided temptation.

The serpent answered her, "Ye shall not surely die: for God doth know that in the day ye eat thereof, then your eyes shall be opened, and ye shall be as gods, knowing good and evil."

Yielding to Temptation That was indeed subtle, for the fruit of the tree looked particularly tempting, and added to that it would make her wise, the serpent said: so she ate some of it, and offered some to Adam, and he too ate. Now they had been created wearing no clothes. They were perfectly unconscious about it, as the primitive peoples are today. There was no reason why they should cover themselves. They were beautiful, just as God had made them. But now they began to feel naked and they made
