Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white marquisette over taffeta, fashioned with shirred bodice, high, round neckline and full skirt ending in a long train. Tiny marquisette ruffles trimmed the bodice and the short puffed sleeves, and her veil of ivory bridal illusion was arranged with a pleated full coronet of illusion, and swept full over her train in the back. She carried a cascade bouquet of gardenias, stephanotis and ivy, centered with a white orchid.

Wear Pastel Gowns

Pastel gowns of lace and marquisette over taffeta were worn by the bride's three attendants, and they carried cascade bouquets of flowers in harmonizing shades. Their frocks were designed alike, with lace bodices, sweetheart necklines, short sleeves, and full skirts of marquisette, with short lace peplums.

The maid of honor was attired in a blue frock and her flowers were pink roses and blue delphiniums. Miss Renz wore pink, and carried pink and white roses, and Miss Robenalt was dressed in yellow and carried yellow roses and blue delphiniums. Each of the attendants wore a tiara of flowers matching those in her bouquet, Roy Robinson, who is employed and a rhinestone bracelet given her by the bride. Following the ceremony a recep-
