

Men From Battle Fronts Suffer Untold Agony

Wife From Area Describes Some of Scenes That Take Place Among Wounded Men.

"I can't describe the senses, begin to tell of the untold suffering of our brave men from the front," Mrs. Charles Cosky, of Waynesville, told Rotarians on Friday. Mrs. Cosky is a nurse and after the Pearl Harbor attack went to work among the men brought back from there to California hospitals. "It was horrible. Some turned to a crisp. Many mangled. Severe pain on every hand. Those men paid a price," she said. She told of some of the precautions now being used on the west coast, and the general reaction of civilians to the war in that area. "I had a close friend living at Pearl Harbor on December 7. When the raid started, this woman took her four-year-old son and with other women and children went to the cane fields. They got flat on the ground, and my friend covered her small son with her body for four hours. The agony they went through, as the Japs flew so close the ground that she

Building & Loan Goes Over Top On Bond Quota

The Haywood Home Building and Loan Association is over the top in the purchase of war savings bonds, according to a report received at State League committee headquarters yesterday. The Haywood association has purchased bonds in excess of its assigned quota in connection with the $100,000,000 war bond purchase program being sponsored by the U. S. Savings and Loan League, and the North Carolina Building and Loan Association of $100,000,000 in war bonds between June 30 and December 31. The North Carolina association has been requested to purchase $1,915,000 in bonds, and in turn quotas have been assigned by counties to the individual associations.
