Nurse Specialist Will Hold 1-Day Conference On 10th

Mrs. Ruth Frantz Will Consult With Red Cross Nurses Next Tuesday Here.

Home nursing in Haywood County will receive added impetus with the arrival in Waynesville of Mrs. Ruth Frantz, R. N., who is Red Cross Consultant for the State of North Carolina.

After considerable effort, it has been arranged to have Mrs. Frantz conduct a one-day conference in Home Nursing in Waynesville at Welch Memorial Hall on Tuesday, November 10th from 9:30 a. m. to 4:30 p. m., for all nurses in Haywood and surrounding counties who are authorized by the Red Cross to teach, and as well, for all those interested in teaching. Both groups are urged to attend this institute.

The increasing need and demand for Home Nursing instruction is emphasized in this community by the departure of nurses for war work and the fact that there are not enough nurses to serve the community. Home-makers now know the need for instruction so that they may know how to defend their homes against sickness, the spread of communicable diseases and to keep their families and neighbors healthy. These are the things taught in the Red Cross Home Nursing classes, but there is great need for more, and still more, nurses qualified and willing to teach, or who can be qualified.

This is a direct appeal to nurses who have laid aside their caps because of marriage or other ties, to attend this institute and to qualify to aid in the emergency. It takes but two hours time per week to teach one of these classes. If there are those who are hesitant because of long absence from the work or by reason of unfamiliarity with teaching methods, they will find in Mrs. Frantz a pleasing personality, unusual capability and one recognized as a leader and outstanding in her field. She has the persuasiveness that will make the task appear not too difficult.

The assignment of Mrs. Frantz to conduct this institute for this community deserves a large attendance.

HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL
(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for Nov. 8 is Deuteronomy 6:4-9, 20-25; II Timothy 3:14, 15, the Golden Text being Proverbs 22:6, "Train up a child in the way he should go, and even when he is old he will not depart from it.")

THE BOOK of Deuteronomy is the book of the laws—the ten commandments—which were given Moses on tablets of stone to guide his people. The early chapters record discourses by Moses on the plains of Moab, on the eastern side of Jordan. It was shortly before his death.

"Hear, O Israel; The Lord our God is one Lord:
"And thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thine heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy might."

This commandment, Moses told the Israelites, should be always in their hearts. They should diligently teach it to their children, talk about it in their homes, and when they were walking, when they laid down to rest, and when they rose in the morning. These people were quite inclined to forget their Lord and worship idols who were the gods of the peoples with whom they came in contact.

It was not hard for those to remember this truth who had been slaves in Egypt, and had been brought out and led to the promised land, but it was more difficult for their children and their children's children, who knew of these stirring events only by hearsay. They were the ones who should be taught daily of the miracle of their escape from slavery, and the leading of the Lord their God.

Worn as a Sign
"And thou shalt bind them for a sign upon thine hand, and they shall be as frontlets between thine eyes. And thou shalt write them upon the posts of thy house, and on thy gates."

In ancient Israel, and even today, small parchment rolls enclosed in metal covers were bound on the hand or on the brow of the Jew. The parchment contained the
