HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL (The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for Nov. 29 is Matthew 18:15-17; Acts 1:8; 2:42; 6:1-4; 1:27-30; 13:1-3; 1 John 1:3, the Golden Text being John 20:21, "As the Father hath sent me, even so send I you.")

JESUS WAS talking to His disciples who had been asking Him questions, such as, "Who is greatest in the kingdom of heaven?" Jesus had answered by setting a little child in their midst and telling them that the one who could humble himself as the little child would be the greatest.

Jesus then told them that if a man's brother sinned against him, the man should go to his brother, tell him his fault and ask him to make things right. If he could do this the brothers could still remain friends—"If he shall hear thee thou hast gained thy brother."

If the brother would not listen, two or three friends should be called to be witnesses that the man had tried to make things right with the brother who had wronged him, and these others should help him. If, however, the brother still refused to be reconciled and acknowledge his fault, the matter should be taken to the church.

If the Church Failed If the church could not right the matter because the brother neglected to listen, then he should be cast out of the fellowship, become "an heathen man and a publican." Even after he had been thus cast out, however, the good man would not give up hope for the reclamation of his brother, according to Jesus' teaching. This is one of the rare occasions in which Jesus mentioned the church, and he spoke of it as the organization of the believers that not only met to preach and pray together, but to take an active part in the home relationships of its members.

Jesus told them later that they—the disciples—would receive power from the Holy Ghost, and should preach the gospel, not only in Jerusalem, but "in Judaea, and in Samaria, and unto the uttermost parts of the earth." This was immediately before He ascended to heaven.

Even in this devoted following there arose complaints as their numbers increased. The Grecian Jews murmured that their widows were not given their fair share of food and support. The early church decided that all members could not leave their preaching to see that justice was done, so the twelve appointed "seven men of honest report" to take care of the matter—the first deacons of the church.

Prophets at Antioch Now we are taken to Antioch, where came "prophets from Jerusalem." One of them named Agabus prophesied that there would be a famine, which it is said actually happened in the reign of Claudius Caesar. The disciples at Antioch immediately determined to send relief to their brethren in Judaea, and send Paul and Barnabas to carry it to them, each man contributing according to his ability.

Now came up the question of the missionaries that should be sent out to preach the gospel of Jesus. At Antioch there were certain teachers and prophets gathered together. "As they ministered to the Lord, and fasted, the Holy Ghost said, Separate me Barnabas and Saul for the work whereunto I have called them." After fasting and prayer, they laid their hands on Barnabas and Saul, blessing them, and the two were sent to carry the message to the "ends of the world."

Fellowship With the Father "That which we have seen and heard declare we unto you, that ye also may have fellowship with us; and truly our fellowship is with the Father, and with His son Jesus Christ."

This fellowship is the church. In these trying days many turn instinctively to the church, its human friendliness and spiritual aid. Churches are not perfect, being human, but they do aspire to follow the Master and to hold communion with God the Father, and it is good for us to go regularly and take our children to help in the good work the church is doing and has been doing since the time of the apostles who formed that early congregation. We, too, may help each other when there is a famine—be it from lack of food and other bodily needs, or from spiritual poverty. We can even find a way there to help settle our family disputes as the Master would wish us to do, and to find strength to carry on in our particular jobs and to aid in finally making a better world.

Lespedeza Practice Approved For State Under AAA Program

Farmers of Haywood county will be allowed one unit or $1.50 per acre toward maximum production practice payments under the 1943 AAA program for establishing good stands and good growths of lespedeza, provided they are left on the land or turned under, according to Glenn A. Boyd, chairman of the County AAA committee.

Credits for this practice will be allowed only if the entire growth, other than seed, is left on the land or turned under as a green manure crop. It must not be pastured or mowed for hay. Credit also will be allowed only for the acreage of lespedeza seeded artificially during the 1943 program year on land on which lespedeza was not grown in 1942, the chairman said. The seeding rate per acre, and a good stand similar to that which normally would be secured from such seeding and good growth must be obtained. He defined a good growth as one reaching an average height of five or six inches.

Chairman Boyd also said the credit of one unit or $1.50 per acre has been approved under the 1943 program for turning under crotalaria as a green manure crop. To qualify for credit, he said, good stand and good growth which was seeded artificially in the 1943 program year must be plowed or disked under.

"Approval of these practices should be extremely valuable to farmers in the coming agricultural year," he said. "With the nation at war, we must keep our farmlands in shape to produce to the limit as long as necessary. As if we do this, we must protect our land during the winter months and also store in the soil as much nitrogen as possible by growing legume crops. Application of phosphate, potash, and liming materials are recommended with the lespedeza practice."

Credits earned for carrying on approved practices under the AAA program are counted toward maximum payments which may be made on any farm cooperating in the program.
