

The Tar Heel Front IN WASHINGTON

By Robert A. Erwin and Frances McKusick

Washington.—Good news on the Heel front in Washington came with the Democratic caucus announcement of committee memberships which delegates a member of the North Carolina delegation every major committee in the legislative body.

Representative Cameron M. Morrison was assigned to the War Relocation Authority, one of the most important groups handling war refugees and Representative John Folger was promoted to Bank and Currency.

Folger declared it was "what I wanted." He had not been an official candidate for Bank and Currency, leaving his fate to the determination of Ways and Means which is headed by North Carolina's Robert L. Doughton.

"Pretty good for a new boy," Morrison's reaction. "I'm delighted to be assigned to Naval Affairs."

winkle of Gastonia. Agriculture, Representative Harold D. Cooley.

Food has become increasingly important, not only to the local housewife who cooks it, and you and I who eat it, but also to congressmen who face legislation regarding it.

Viewing the world-wide food situation with alarm, Representative Graham A. Barden of New Bern has proposed that the government have farmers meet production quotas by assigning them crop contracts at stated prices in order to prevent production losses. He plans to present his case to the department of agriculture and to deliver a speech on the subject on the floor of the House shortly.

"If the government deals with farmers on a contract basis, you will see plows turned next week that never will be turned otherwise, unless there is some assurance behind it."

"Our farmers don't need and don't want loans and subsidies. Nor do they like to be threatened with reduction of benefit payments if they don't produce what the government tells them to. All they want is a fair degree of protection."

Barden, former Craven county judge and state legislator, said he was born and raised on a farm and has operated farms, and that on the basis of this experience, he is convinced the government must change its food program if it is to succeed.

Representative Durham is also much concerned with the non-bread slicing order. Housewives, bakeries and enteries have deluged him with protests against the OPA edict that the loaf must be sold in one piece.

"This order not to sell sliced bread is the silliest thing that's yet come out of the National War Agencies," he declared disgustedly. "The alleged reason for the

Yanks Buy Souvenirs in India

When payday rolls around once a month, a good many of the men in service go on buying sprees. Corporals Ted Orlinkowski (left), of Milwaukee, Wis., and Milan Budza, of Chicago, spend part of their salaries buying souvenirs at a mart in New Delhi, India. order is to raise the price of wheat. It seems officials figure that if the bakeries don't have to pay labor to slice the bread they sell, they can pay more for the flour that goes into it. This is supposed to seep down to the flour mills so that they can give a higher price to the farmer for his wheat. Actually, it won't help the farmers much, if any, and it will cause great hardships all along the line, down to the poor housewife who has to go out and try to buy a bread-knife."

"Now we'll pay it and now we won't" seems to be the confused state of mind shared by most men and women regarding their 1942 taxes. The Pay-as-you-go Ruml plan of meeting your indebtedness to Uncle Sam seems to be gaining in popularity, especially on Capitol Hill, although there is little indication that last year's taxes will Hereford Sale Of Interest Is Held In Fort Worth, Tex.

A sale was recently held at the farm of Jack Turner, of Fort Worth, Texas, at which time a total of 72 head of purebred Herefords was sold for around $48,000.

Mr. Turner was one of the largest consignees at the cattle sale held at Clyde last fall under the auspices of the American Hereford Association and 20 head of purebred Herefords from his farm were bought and are owned by Haywood cattle raisers.

A story regarding the sale was carried in a recent copy of the American Hereford Journal.

Senator Robert R. Reynolds was so touched by the sad story of a fire at Ingalls in Avery county last October which destroyed a family farm home of Mrs. Joseph Wiseman and $500 in twenty-dollar bills that he has introduced a bill for the relief of Mrs. Wiseman. None of the fire damage was covered by insurance.

Mrs. Wiseman told the story to the Senator. She said two of her three sons are at war, one as store-keeper on a battleship, the other with the army in England, and that the third son, who is the only one left at home, had just sold some cattle. He had planned to take the money to Spruce Pine the next day, when the fire broke out.

The treasury department refused, however, to repay Mrs. Wiseman on evidence of the ashes of the currency.

This made it necessary for the Senator to prepare and present a bill in order to try to aid Mrs. Wiseman.

Last to Leave Wake

Shown at a press conference in New York is Lieut. Col. Walter L. Bayler (above), U.S.M.C., the last American to leave Wake Island before the Japs captured it. He left the island on a Navy plane with official mail, just forty hours before Wake fell. Since then, the marine officer has been seeing plenty of action at Midway and the Solomons. He is now awaiting a new assignment. (Central Press)
