Peter Comforts Persecuted Christians

HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL
(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for June 6 is I Peter 3:13-17; 4:12-16; 5:6-10, the Golden Text being I Peter 3:17, "For it is better, if the will of God should so will, that ye suffer for well-doing than for evil-doing.")

"WHO IS he that will harm you, if ye be followers of that which is good?" Peter asks the question of the Christians in Asia Minor who were suffering persecutions for their faith. Peter must have been worried about these people, worried because of what he knew they must be suffering, worried for fear, perhaps, they might be tempted to give up their faith in fear of death.

So he took up his pen and wrote them letters of comfort, letters of hope, words intended to make them not only strong enough to stand firm in their faith, but to glorify that faith and render them happy even in their many trials or martyrdom.

"If ye suffer for righteousness sake, happy are ye; and be not afraid of their terror, neither be troubled."

Next he tells them to have a good answer ready for "every man that asketh you a reason of the hope that is in you, with meekness and fear." Men were expected by the Greeks to be able to give ready answers to questions about their opinions, and to discuss intelligently and temperately their reasons for such opinions or faiths. They were told to answer questions, not in fear or in a belligerent manner, but with becoming meekness, having good consciences.

To Shame Slanderers

By this attitude those who spoke of them as evil doers should be ashamed of so doing because of their good conversation in Christ. "For it is better, if the will of God be so, that ye suffer for well doing, than for evil doing."

"Beloved," Peter writes, "think it not strange concerning the fiery trial which is to try you, as though some strange thing happened unto you. But rejoice, inasmuch as ye are partakers of Christ's sufferings."

Fiery trials, indeed, were in store for many of these Christians. They were classed on a level with thieves and murderers and the Roman state was bound to crush them—stamp them out.

It was natural that they should wonder why they were persecuted so fiercely as if they were criminals, when they taught and practiced a religion of love. But their leader and master, Christ, had suffered death, so they should not be surprised, and if they, too, were crucified, they could "share Christ's sufferings" in their own way. They should therefore be happy, and rejoice in this.

"Let none of you suffer as a murderer, or as a thief or as an evildoer, or as a busybody in other men's matters."

Meddling in other people's affairs was a serious offense in the Roman world, just as in the days of the Puritans, when gossips were ducked in the pond.

"Yet if any man suffer as a Christian, let him not be ashamed; but let him glorify God on this behalf." They were to hold their heads up proudly. They were not criminals, but good men suffering for their faith.

Finally, they were admonished to "humble yourselves therefore under the mighty hand of God, that He may exalt you in due time."

"Casting all your care upon Him; for He careth for you."

They were in God's care, so why should they be burdened? Satan might walk about as a roaring lion, "seeking whom he may devour." They should cast their burdens on Him and remain steadfast in their faith, accepting their afflictions, and "the God of all grace, who hath called us unto His eternal glory by Christ Jesus, after that ye have suffered a while, make you perfect, stabilize, strengthen, settle you."
