-TIMELY- Farm Questions and Answers

Question: Why are we asked to eat more Irish potatoes?

Answer: The potato crop of last year was the largest in history. Stocks now on hand exceed the normal carryover for this time of the year. There are ample quantities of potatoes to meet all the needs of all types of consumers. Housewives, restaurants and other public eating places, schools and institutions are being urged to serve more potatoes. Conditions are decidedly different from those at this time last year.

Question: Does North Carolina produce more eggs than any other state in the Southeast?

Answer: No. Virginia is slightly ahead of us, according to Prof. Roy S. Dearstyne, head of the poultry department at State College. We rank No. 14 in the total number of chickens produced in the U. S., and ahead of other states in this district. We rank sixth in the number of broilers produced, and four of the five states ahead of us in the Nation, are located in the same region that we are. North Carolina is forging to the front as a poultry producing state—a fact that few people realize.

Question: Why has winter cabbage been named a "Victory Food Selection" for the coming month?

Answer: The crop now being marketed is the largest in history, as a result of the War Food Administration's call for greater production. Housewives, food merchants, restaurants, distributors, and all channels of trade have been asked to feature cabbage during this period to help market and utilize the crop. Vitamin "C" in cabbage is easily destroyed by heat and easily oxidized by air. Serve cabbage raw just after slicing, or cook it just long enough to make it tender.

 He—My dear, clever men don't become husbands.
