A professor was once accosted by a dirty little bootblack:

Bootblack—Shine, sir? Professor (disgusted by the dirt on the lad's face)—I don't want a shine, my lad, but if you will go and wash your face I'll give you a dime.

Bootblack (as he started for a neighboring fountain)—Right gov'nor.

Soon he returned looking much cleaner.

Professor—Well my boy, you have earned your dime, here it is.

Bootblack—I don't want your dime, gov'nor. You hang on to it and get your hair cut.

Before wasting anything, think of the man hours needed to replace it. Especially daddy's dough.

Silence also seems to be quietly enjoyed at times.
