Chilean Engineer Observes Water Supply Here

Oscar Gonzalez, of Santiago, Chile, of the government division in control of the erection of public water supplies and sewage facilities in Chile, spent Wednesday here inspecting the Waynesville water supply.

Mr. Gonzalez was accompanied by E. C. Hubbard, principal of the sanitation engineering division of the North Carolina State Board of Health.

The Chilean has been working on his Master's degree for the past year and a half at the University of Michigan and came to North Carolina for the purpose of observing public water supplies, in construction, operation and maintenance.

Mr. Gonzalez is getting ideas for practical application in the water supply plants in Chilean projects, which will be under his supervision. He plans to visit several states before returning to Chile at the end of the year. The Waynesville system which is a surface chlorine supply with a protected watershed, is a type of water supply in which he is especially interested, due to the similarity of this section to the mountainous areas of Chile, and the fact that he will be constructing the same type of water supplies in Chile.

One of Mr. Gonzalez's instructors at the University of Michigan is H. E. Miller, of this state, who was the former director of the Division of Sanitation Engineering of the North Carolina State Board of Health, advised him to include North Carolina in his tour of observation.

Mr. Gonzalez is observing three water supplies in this section, the Asheville plant, which is similar to the Waynesville watershed on a large scale and the Hendersonville water system, which is another type.

Michael J. Collins, of Washington, D. C., has returned home after spending ten days with his mother-in-law, Mrs. John F. Cabe, at her home on Church street. Mr. Collins is connected with the British government in Washington.

Miss Josephine Cabe spent last week in Atlanta as the guest of Mrs. Archie Dale.
