Haywood County Man Is Wedded To English Girl In Yeovil, England

The following account of the marriage of a Haywood county man to an English girl will be of interest in this area. The account is from "The Western Gazette," of Yeovil, England, a newspaper very much on the order of The Waynesville Mountaineer, so the bride has written her mother-in-law. Her husband, who is receiving the local paper, had shown a copy to his bride:

"Private First Class Paul Revere Cagle, of Waynesville, North Carolina, second son of Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Cagle, was married to Miss Eileen Maud Marsh, third daughter of Mrs. and the late Mr. A. V. Marsh, of 51 Marlcrose, The Vicar officiated.

"The bride, who was given away by Mr. R. Guppy, wore a wedding gown of white taffeta, and wore a silk tulle veil, with headdress of gardenias. She carried an ivory bound prayerbook. The bridesmaid was Miss Olive Ruth Marsh, sister of the bride, wearing a floral taffeta dress with headdress to match, and carrying a posy of violets.

The best man was Mr. Edwin E. Grishal, U. S. Army. A reception was held at the home of the bride's mother. The bridegroom's present to the bridesmaid was a gold signet ring.

"Pfc. Cagle entered the service in May, 1942, and was inducted at Fort Jackson and from there was transferred to an unannounced station and then to Iceland. From Iceland he was sent to England, where he has been stationed since November, 1943. Prior to entering the service he had been employed by the Welco Shoe Corporation, before which he had been discharged from three years service in the regular army."

British Import Alcohol
Most British alcohol distilleries, including those normally used for whisky, are out of use or are being used for storage, says Industrial and Engineering Chemistry. Instead of taking over the whisky making plants for the manufacture of alcohol for military purposes, the government prefers to import alcohol from the United States and Canada, as a considerable saving of shipping is effected by importing alcohol rather than the raw materials required to make it.
