GETTING PEACE BEACON READY

WHEN WORKMEN began cleaning the huge floodlights which once illuminated the National Capitol dome, eyebrows in Washington were raised an inch. For it had been stated that not until hostilities end would the lights, dimmed since Dec. 8, 1941, again be seen. (International)

Lt. Donald Dunham In Command Of A Liberty Ship

The following story of Lt. Donald Dunham, Jr., son of Donald Dunham, owner and operator of the Dunham House here, will be of interest to friends locally. The following story of the young attorney of St. Augustine, Fla., appeared in the St. Augustine Observer in a recent edition:

"In the Spring of 1942 a well groomed young man entered the room where a naval procurement officer sat behind a desk. Quizzically the officer remarked, 'Now, don't tell me you are another bright young attorney who wants to be captain of a ship?'"

"Well, sir," the young man replied, 'I am an attorney.'"

"The officer writhed in mock anguish, but he continued, 'Ever been on the water?'"

"The young man grinned and St. Augustine readers will know why he did so, for he was Donald Dunham, Jr., who after receiving his degree in law at the University of Florida, had practiced law in Jacksonville and in St. Augustine, but in an impulsive moment had left it all—for an amazing interlude of shark hunting down around the keys of Florida.

"No doubt the bored officer in charge was sitting on the edge of his seat before the young man finished telling him his story.

"At any rate Lt. Dunham was given a commission and sent aboard a ship in command without ever having any boot training. He is now in the Pacific while his family await him in San Diego. He has since commanded every ship to which he has been assigned."

Shipping Costly
One of the reasons that lettuce is not now transported from distant points is that only an average of 25 pounds of lettuce is consumed from each 285-pound crate shipped.
