Telephone Lines to the Front

Keeping step with the fast advancing war fronts all over the world are the telephone lines of communication. These lines are vital to military and naval operations and as the war fronts expand, vast amounts of additional wires, cables, switchboards and telephones are urgently needed.

Even when an invasion force wins, it loses vast stores of additional communication equipment. That is one price of victory. This is why there are shortages of all kinds of telephone equipment over here and why so many people are waiting for telephone service.

The best possible use is being made of the equipment we have, but there will necessarily continue to be waiting lists for service until the war is won and manufacturing plants have time to convert from war production and catch up with the backed-up demands for equipment.

We'd like those who must wait for a telephone to know that we shall continue to do everything possible to shorten that time.
