MEDIC INTERVIEWS PRISON VICTIMS

Cherry Appoints A. H. Graham Highway Chair.

Former Lt. Governor A. H. (Sandy) Graham, Hillsboro, was appointed chairman of the State Highway Commission by Governor Cherry this week, with half of the ten members reappointed for a four-year term expiring May 1, 1949.

With the approval of the Advisory Budget Commission the Governor set the salary of the chairman at $10,000 per year the salary formerly having been $7,500 per year. A law passed by the General Assembly permitted the Governor with the approval of the Advisory Commission to set the salary.

John A. Goode, of Asheville, replaced Percy B. Ferber, of Andrews in the Tenth District.

Pfc. Terry P. Campbell Serving In Cairo

Pfc. Terry P. Campbell, son of Mrs. Viola Campbell of Waynesville who is serving at an air base in Cairo may be just another "rose monkey" to fellow inmates at the John H. Payne Field, according to information from his headquarters.

Pfc. Campbell was referred to as an "engineer" by appreciative pilots, but to directors of the USAF Transport Command, he is regarded as a key airplane technician one who is well equipped to do the technical jobs which might befall the supply carrier aircraft of the ATC.

Pfc. Campbell has been overseas for the past six months and his primary job is to perform periodic inspections of aircraft but regular check-ups of this nature usually lead to a full day of repair work. It may be the hydraulic system one day a cylinder change the next or an intensive electrical circuit inspection another day.

Whatever the trouble Pfc. Campbell is qualified to remedy it. In this way he releases another transport to deliver vitally needed war supplies to Allied troops in the Far East and Russia.

A trio composed of Ida Lou Gibson, soprano, Jean Hyatt, alto, Anton Hyatt, baritone will sing "The Y. W. Rose" by McDowell, "April Etaness" by Blum, and "Parade of the Wooden Soldiers" by Joseph.

Dorothy Gaddis will play a clarinet.

Homer Elmer Arrington Stationed In Norfolk

Homer Elmer Arrington, seaman second class, USNR, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Arrington, of Waynesville, R.F.D. No. 1, recently arrived at the Naval Training Station, Norfolk. Here he will undergo training duties aboard a new destroyer of the Atlantic fleet.

Seaman Arrington recently completed a period of training at the Naval Training Center, Bainbridge, Md. Before enlisting in the Nav., he was employed by the Welles Shoe Corporation.

Future Home

In the future you may expect "on the spot" lighting for household tasks. For example, you may have a fluorescent light over your ironing board which, like the board, folds away into the wall when not in use.

net number and a chorus will sing Brown's "Wedding of the Painted Doll."

Mother's Worries Over Child

By GARRY CLEVELAND MYERS, P.E.D.

AT THE SUGGESTION of her pastor, the wife of a professional man writes of her child of six.

"He does a great deal of fighting with his playmates at home and at school, and he seems never quite satisfied with a fight until someone has really been hurt. The closest thing at hand is the best weapon, a stick, a stone, a gun and on one occasion, a pen knife (which he was allowed to use for whittling, on the back porch).

"Another problem is his taking things which belong to others. I don't mean he steals things. He simply thinks that anything in our house is his to use when and as he chooses. He has a desk of his own containing pencils, paper, stamps, scissors, paper clips, etc. Yet he is continually rummaging through his father's. On various occasions he has mislaid important things. I do not expect him to fully appreciate the value of an insurance book or a war bond, but these things are ours and not his. Why can't I make him understand that? I have explained, I have forbidden, I have punished, yet he still does it.

Jealousy Problem

"We have another little boy, fourteen months old, whom the older boy greatly admires and likes very much. There is no trouble there."

As I wrote this mother, she is wrong in assuming there is no jealousy problem. When it isn't the sole, or even the chief, source of trouble, it easily could be a factor in his fighting with water children, even in his stubborn ways with his parents. I have a bulletin on "Jealousy" to be had in a stamped envelope. Be sure the baby is not allowed to play with the older boy's things.

Explained Too Much

You have tried so hard to be fair and reasonable with this lad that you have explained too much. He has learned to outwit you and has taken advantage of your patience. You and his father should make clear to him just once that he must not fight with weapons nor rummage through his father's desk. Whichever one of you happens to be on hand when he does either, spank him soundly without further warning or explanation.

However, he is conditioner-1 to the chair-sitting punishment, sentence him to sit in a chair where you can see him without amusement for exactly 40 minutes for each offense, instead of paddling him. Be sure to discontinue all argument and nagging.

If you two parents are consistent and settle a few of these matters decisively, his doubts will be removed and he will adapt himself to the various rules and have a wholesome regard for your authority and possessions.

Put the meaning, over-look other children's eyes of his which you dislike. Help him attract playmates. Let him be home where you and his father will provide all sorts of fun. Games and means for playing times together. Complicate him more often for his good ideas and traits and try to have more good times with him.

Sheep Shearing School To Be Held Crabtree, Friday

A sheep shearing school will be held at the farm of Glenn C. Palmer on Crabtree on Friday, 4th, starting at 9:00 a. m. and lasting through the day, according to Howard R. Clapp, county farm agent.

The school has been arranged in order to give those who are interested in learning to shear sheep properly an opportunity to have supervision and schooling for one day.

Those sponsoring the school are especially anxious to teach a group of both men and boys enough about shearing so that they can shear their own sheep and the custom work for other sheep raisers in the county.

The older boys in the county 4-H Clubs and also the members of the FFA chapters are urged to attend. These boys can render a definite service and make good wages by custom shearing in their communities it was pointed out by Mr. Clapp.
