BEST FARM HAS $90,000 BUILDING PROGRAM

More Funds Given State Test Farm

Many Modern Buildings Under Construction; Others Included In Program

With an additional appropriation of $24,500 the State Test Farm here is fast finishing a $90,000 building program to completion, it was learned from Dean Colvard, assistant director in charge. This will represent an investment of $150,000 in the farm.

At work on the construction program are 15 to 20 men, not including those regularly engaged in the farm work.

Approval has been made, and 200,000 tons of crushed stone are on the ground and for building three-quarters of a mile of highway from the end of East Street through the farm. Plans are scheduled to have this completed by fall. The road will connect with the Raccoon Creek road.

Another project which is not in the building program is the establishment of an orchard in about a year. It will be apples and small fruit.

The program includes: 2 barns, 1 curing barn, 1 unit, 1 unit—two units, and have a cap-birds and 800 layers.

40-head dairy barn, Calf barn, 2-story office and laboratory, Stone superintendent's home, 2 new tenant houses, 3 workmen's houses, Implement shed, Grain and storage house, Mill house.

In addition to these, four small silos will be moved from the former test farm at Swannanoa.

Before the end of the month plans are to bring the 50-head Jersey herd here from Swannanoa, and add a 10-head herd of Guernsey cows.

"The Waynesville farm offers a greater opportunity than the Swannanoa farm," Mr. Colvard said, "since it is more typical of more Western North Carolina soil."

The Waynesville farm is part of the mountain experiment, with 410 acres in Ashe county, devoted to the study of beef cattle and sheep. The farm here has 232 acres.

Much interest is being shown in the farm, and only last week three large delegations were here getting plans for building barns and copying the dairy barn on the local farm.

Of special interest right now is the experiment with winter oats. Some 30 varieties are grown on the farm, and three or four of them are proving better than barley.

Some ten varieties of alfalfa have been sown and are proving to be of much interest to farmers of this area.

Besides Mr. Colvard, others here with the farm include Dr. Luther Shaw, Turkish tobacco specialist, J. E. Love, poultryman, R. L. York, dairyman, W. M. Whisenand, farm manager, Miss Hazel Drake is secretary.

Farmers interested in seeing and learning of the experiments, or any other feature of the farm are always welcome, it was pointed out, and can go at any time and get the desired information.

Pet Dairy Adds New Equipment To Local Plant

A 1,000-gallon refrigerating milk storage tank of the latest design has been installed at Pet Dairy Products Company here. The new piece of equipment will aid in taking care of the increase volume of milk the plant is now handling.

"The plant is up 25 per cent on production over last year," R. B. Davenport, district manager, said this week.

An auxiliary ammonia compressor has also been added to the plant to take care of the heavy load of refrigeration required.

The general increase demand for food is the answer to the increase volume, according to Mr. Davenport.

Sales of the new milk sherbet has also broken all expectations in sales, it was announced.

Everyone In A "Stew" Over Canning, But No Sugar Is In Sight

The canning sugar picture remains unchanged, which means there just isn't any for local would-be canners, it was learned from the local board yesterday, as they, too, anxiously awaited orders from headquarters to resume issuing certificates.

The district office held up further issuance of certificates recently when the supply of sugar in the nation became alarmingly low. At the time, only a third of the 14,000 Waynesville applications had been filled. The remaining more than 9,000 people are having to wait until the orders are changed.

The local personnel of the war price and rationing board are answering hundreds of questions daily about the situation, but their answers all boil down to "we haven't the slightest idea when we will be told to issue more canning sugar, and the district office gives us the same answer."

And all the while, everyone is in a "stew", but there's no sugar to sweeten the situation.

Building Permits Now Required In Hazelwood; Fire Zones Being Made

State Building Code Will Be Followed; G. C. Summerrow Is Building Inspector

Announcement was made yesterday that a building permit must be secured before any building or repairing can be made in the town limits of Hazelwood.

The state building code is being followed by the town in carrying out the ordinance, and any person failing to secure proper permit before starting construction, repairing or remodeling, will be liable to a fine of $50 or 30 days imprisonment, it was pointed out.

The town officials are setting up fire zones in the town, and plan to have the entire town area zoned within the next week. This will place certain restrictions on buildings in all areas of the town.

The mayor and town board have named G. C. Summerrow as building inspector and he will also be charged with the issuance of permits where applicants comply with the code.

Col. Bryan Conrad Promoted To Brigadier General

Colonel Bryan Conrad, son of Mrs. Janie Love McQuire, of Winchester, Va., formerly of Waynesville, has been promoted to brigadier general, according to information received here by his aunt, Mrs. Robert H. Mitchell.

General Conrad, a graduate of West Point, is a native of Waynesville, and has been on General Eisenhower's staff since the latter has been serving in the European theatre.

At the time this country entered the war General Conrad was residing in London, where he had been attached to the American Embassy for a number of years.

Believe Haywood Will Get 50 New Cars This Year

The WPB announcement that 200,000 passenger cars would be manufactured this year gave many local people encouragement of getting one before 1946 rolls around.

A group of local automobile men discussing the possibilities of new car sales in Haywood, figured that about 50 new cars of all makes would likely be allotted this county. These fifty would be sold only on high priority, such as to doctors, policemen and top essential car users.

The figures were based on population, and taking Haywood as having an average number of "high priority" users of cars. From best checks, there are about ten agencies in the county, which would give the average dealer about five cars each, if present plans, and the law of averages hold true in this instance.

One dealer said, "those who are neglecting their cars in the hopes of getting a new one soon, better watch out and take care of what they have."
