Park Has Much! Virgin Forests.

The most extensive forest of virgin red spruce and unspoiled hardwoods in the United States is to be found in the Park, with nearly half the area, or approximately 200,000 acres, in its original forested condition. Some 129 native tree species have been found. In addition, 11 other varieties, not native, grow here. A number of plants, ordinarily regarded as shrubs, become arborescent or tree-like in their growth. One specimen of mountain laurel is 82 inches in diameter at the base, with limbs 31 and 12 inches in diameter. Chestnuts, red maples, buckeyes, black cherries, silverbells, hemlocks, red spruces, yellow birches, and tulip poplars all become giants of their kind.

Park Is Greatest Mountain Mass In Eastern America

Astride the Tennessee-North Carolina border, the Great Smoky Mountains, greatest mountain mass east of the Black Hills of South Dakota, cast a spell of mystery and enchantment. From the lush vegetation of their valleys and extending to the tops of their lofty peaks, there rises a tenuous mist, a deep blue haze from which the mountains get their name. Survivals of earliest geological times, they are a portion of the Appalachian Range and one of the oldest land areas on earth.

The Great Smokies, for 36 consecutive miles in the Park, are more than 5,000 feet in altitude; 16 peaks are more than 6,000 feet high. The Park is 54 miles long; its greatest width is 19 miles. The range meanders through the Park for a distance of 71 miles. The Park eventually will comprise approximately 440,000 acres, or 687.5 square miles.

History Of Park Dates Back to 1926

Establishment of the Park was authorized by act of Congress, approved May 22, 1926. Three decades before that the area was little known to the outside world. Desoto, first white explorer on this continent, is believed to have viewed the mountains. They were the home of the Cherokees, many of whose descendants now occupy the Qualla Indian Reservation on the southern fringe of the Park. The white settlers were colonists from England and Scotland, and they lived for generations shut off from the outside.

The successful movement for establishment of the Park was begun in 1923. Since 1926 the land for the Park has been acquired gradually by the States of Tennessee and North Carolina, with Federal aid, in addition to a contribu-

Park Has Large Variety of Plants

Few, if any, areas in the entire United States possess so great a variety of plants. More than 1,200 flowering plants, 1,000 fungi, 300 mosses, approximately 200 lichens, and 100 liverworts have been found. The earliest flowers occasionally appear by the close of January in lowland areas, while the witch hazel, latest to bloom, may hold its blossoms into December. Late April finds the spring flowers, including the abundant dogwood, at their blossoming peak; May is best for the mountain laurel; middle June usually finds both the flame azalea and purple-pink rhododendron at their finest; middle July is likely to be the peak of the great white rhododendron's flowering. Autumn colors are excellent throughout October, with the height of coloration near the end of the month.

600 Miles of Streams In Park

There are 600 miles of trout streams in the Park annually. Rainbow trout and smallmouth bass, the devotees of Izak Walton, are abundant. Licensees from Tennessee, Carolina or both States may be found engaged in fishing. The fishing season runs from May 16 to August 31. Regulations may be obtained from the office of the superintendent or from rangers or wardens.

Our Country Needs Still More Used Fats ... and We're the Folks to Save Them!

OUR domestic supplies of fats and oils will be approximately one and one-half billion pounds less than last year. Yet thousands of tons are still needed to help make countless essentials for the battle- and home-fronts.

We country people must remember that because of the meat situation, we are in a better position to save fats than city folks. That's why we can't afford to miss a trick!

So let's save not only the big amounts from frying and roasting, but also meat trimmings and plate scraps. Melt them down and add the liquid fat to the salvage can. Skim soups and gravies. Every drop is important.

When your salvage can is full, take it to your butcher and get 2 red points and up to 4¢ for each pound. If you have any difficulty, call your County Agent or Home Demonstration Agent.

100,000,000 More Pounds of Used Fats Are Needed This Year!

Approved by WFA and OPA. Paid for by industry.
