Timely, Practical Household Suggestions

Prospects of a sizeable drop in civilian supplies of commercially canned foods-particularly tomatoes-is an added incentive for putting up plenty of tomatoes at nome this summer.

If a tomato plant gives a good average yield of 6 pounds of tomatoes, this will be enough to can about 3 quart jars of tomatoes. On the average, 9 to 10 plants will vield a bushel of tomatoes—enough for putting up 15 to 20 quarts of Gardners who want to get the most in vitamin value from their sweet peppers will pick them red instead of green. This suggestion comes from scientists who recently ested different varieties of peppers at different stages of growth:

Peppers are rich in both vitanin A and C when they are at the nature green stage, but they show remarkable increase as they red-Ten varieties of peppers grown at the Rhode Island Station ncreased an average of 3.175 per ent in carotene and 49 per cent n ascorbic acid as they become Pumento peppers grown at he Georgia Station and harvested ate in the season after frost were ill per cent richer in ascorbic acid han those harvested early in the

Even the small amounts of sweet peppers ordinarily used stuffed or n salad, or to add color and flavor o main dishes may do a consider ible bit toward adding food value o family meals, especially if they ire allowed to become red-ripe Stuffed red peppers are attractive and delicious, and sliced red peppers add appetizing color and flavor o salads as do green, say nutrition

Mrs. James A. Gwyn, who is pending sometime here, has been joined by Mr. Gwyn and upon heir completion of their visit here will both return to Wilmington. They had as their guest for several days Mrs. C. C. Curtis, of Tryon, the former Miss Elise Gwyn of this county.

Where Is Your Life's History Recorded?

In Your Home Town Newspaper!

For 61 years, The Mountaineer and those newspapers which came before it form an unbroken chain since 1884, have been recording the life histories of Haywood county men and women. For the great majority of them, it is the only record made of their achievements and their contributions to the cause of humanity.

This is the purpose of a newspaper, and those of us here at The Mountaineer office keep that fact ever before us in order that we may do the best possible job in recording the history of Haywood county people in as complete a form as possible. Of course, there are limitations to the space available, but we can certainly record the high spots.

With this thought in mind, we appeal to all citizens to co-operate with us in recording history by furnishing us news and by giving us tips regarding news which should be printed.

Down through the years, the publishers of Waynesville's hometown nwespaper have sought to make improvements in the publication, and the ambition of the present publishers is to broaden the solid foundation of The Mountaineer in order that there be no question as to its continuation through the decades to come.

The Mountaineer again pledges itself to continue to serve Waynesville and Haywood county by recording the history of their people, by furnishing them with information which will be helpful, and by offering public encouragement to worthwhile causes and undertakings.

Yes, The Mountaineer is recording history, and as an example of what we mean, we give the highlights in the life of a mythical Waynesville citizen in the column to the right.
