INSTITUTE—Plans are rapidly going ahead for a Tobacco Institute. This organization will work for the farmer and the warehousemen, but mainly for the former. Plans are for it to operate in much the same manner as the N. C. Dairy Products Association, the National Peanut Council, and other groups of this kind.

Look for further announcements about it within the next 10 days.

TOBACCO PRICES—Prices for tobacco have been lower on the Old Belt markets than on the Middle and Eastern Belts. Here is the reason given by the experts: tobacco producers in the Middle Belt, and this is even more true in the East, are big land owners, and they plant scores of acres, and they sometimes represent their counties in the Legislature, and they are bigwigs in the farm organizations, so the buyers know there will be trouble if they don't pay the best possible price. On the other hand, the growers in the Winston-Salem area are as a whole comparatively small landowners, planting from two to 20 acres. They don't carry great deal of influence. So, even though the tobacco in the west this year is better than in the rain-damaged east, prices are lower, because the buyers feel they can get by with it.

As said above, the experts give this version of the relatively low prices on the Old Belt markets. Buyers have not as yet given a better reason.

JONATHAN—Everybody is asking what has become of Jonathan Daniels since the death of President Roosevelt. You know, he got out of the White House saying he was going to work for a publishing firm. He is doing some writing assignments for this company, and does a piece now and then for some liberal rag like the New Republic or the Nation. A while back he had a little piece in Liberty magazine. Although he is at home here every few days, he is doing quite a bit of scribbling—a lot of it free lance. In other words, he sells it wherever he can.

UP—Forest (Fats) Heath, formerly of Harmony in Iredell county and now a big asphalt dealer of Raleigh, was one of the officials at the Wake Forest-Army game. He and his wife and Mr. and Mrs. Leftoy Martin went up for the game, the latter having sons on the Army and Deacon elevens. Funny thing, Heath never played football, but he is one of the top-flight officials. Good money in it, too.
