

A Sixth Grader's Account Of Seeing A Newspaper Printed

Editor's note: This account of a visit to the plant of The Mountaineer last week, was declared the best of the 35 turned in by students of the sixth grade of Central Elementary school.

By JUDY ROBERTS

Mr. Claude Rogers told us on Tuesday that Mr. Russ, editor of The Mountaineer, had invited us to visit the plant and watch the printing of the newspaper on Wednesday.

molds the type used on the press. When the type is molded, it is put into the pages and sent to the press on the next floor by an elevator.

The press is a duplex printing press. It is a large machine that operates in two units at a time. It is run by a 10 horsepower motor, and the whole press weighs about 15 tons.

The plant turns out about 3,400 papers a week. About 7,500 papers are printed from a thousand pound roll of paper.

While we were there the production stopped to put on a roll of paper. It was quite heavy and took three men to handle the roll.

We thought it was nice of Mr. Russ to show us the plant, and how a newspaper is printed. We appreciated the hospitality of The Mountaineer.

Whether 'tis better to follow the even tenor of thy way, Or to ride the clouds on each alternate day...

Yes, that is the biggest question mark in this emotional world of ours. We look about us and see those tranquil souls who meet each sunrise with the same passive equivalence; it is another day and they will go about their daily tasks unhampered by worries that hinder their progress; somehow they always find the pathway they are to tread has been swept for them and waiting complacently for their willing feet.

Little Joannie can fall into the well but he will be hauled out by practical hands and scrubbed clean. spanked a little, loved a lot, and the whole affair put into the limbo of forgotten things.

Even tenor talks over big issues with no fan flare of mental agitation; he is calm, receptive and gets the whole business attended to in a matter of - fact successfulness. And, that matter out of the way, he is ready to attack the next with the same rational out-look. He is spared the wrinkled brow that is supposed to be the side-kick of worry; his nerves are steady and he lives longer.

OR DOES IT JUST SEEM LONGER?

Now there is something to be written on the other side of the ledger of life. The emotionally-upset individual gets a whole lot out of his way of living that the even tenor may miss. It's a whale of a lot of fun to be riding on that rose-colored cloud even though you know any moment you may slam ker-plunk right into disaster and get bounced off to fall millions of miles down to the stern realities of life.

But he sees beauties that the even tenor never gazes upon. His heart can do a complete flop-over at the sight of a wonderful sunset slipping under the covers of night; or hear the whisper of an angel through the muted strings of violins at play. The sudden tears that flood eyes looking upon childish

ALREADY HE FEELS LIKE A CHAMP

THREE YEARS IS AGE ENOUGH, says Joel Galne—and proves it at a Miami Beach, Fla., pool by throwing the old he-man pose for his beach companion, Conan Moore, also 3, shown almost swooning. (International)

Conan T. Harrison

Conan T. Harrison, seaman first class, of Waynesville, had eluded up with the first crewman of the aircraft carrier USS Hancock, as it sailed for the Pacific and returned to the States for Navy Day.

Though "Lightning" Hannah, looks peaceful enough now at her meetings in home waters, her appearance in the Pacific theater, during which time her planes destroyed 22 enemy aircraft, 14 warships and 21 merchant ships.

Commissioned in April, 1944, the Hancock was ready to join the Third Fleet on October, 1944, but from the day she left the Japs reeling over Wake Island to Hokkaido, included in her fighting itinerary were Okinawa, Formosa, Luzon, Iwo-jima, Tokyo, Honshu, Kyushu, Cebu, Hong Kong, and Kobe Harbor.

grief come from those whose hearts are swarming pathosly upon rose-colored vapor. They simply refuse to take things as they come but go in search of the unexpected, knowing full well that trains of thought such as theirs may suddenly run into an open switch, and turn over. But the scenery on the trip was gorgeous!

The cloud-rider knows always that he is going to find himself plunged into the abyss of self-commiseration at any moment but he also knows that another cloud will come along; and that he will climb aboard. So keeping a cloud-rider tied to earth. While he's gliding along in supreme hey-heh, he never stops to think that his next stop may be bottom. And then when he is picking himself out of the dust of disillusionment, he is pining upward in search of another cloud that any minute there never is a middle course for him—it's always up or down. Whether 'tis better to follow the even tenor of thy way... Or to ride the clouds on each alternate day... WHAT DO YOU THINK?
