The Everyday Counselor

REV. HERBERT SPAUGH, D. D.

A troubled reader is coming to the end of 1945 worried, confused and burdened with a deep sense of sin. She admits that she is a product of the modern world, which she feels is the cause of her trouble. She is a Christian, but she feels that she is not living up to the standards of her faith. She is looking for guidance and comfort.

Christmas Day
By Charlotte Greer

"THE trouble with having such an all-fired modern family and trying to keep up with them," Alice told herself as she looked around the hotel dining room on Christmas Day, "is that modernism and Christmas just don't go together."

William came over and sat beside her. "Happy, Alice?" he said, and covered her hand with his. She returned his smile. After all, this spree was costing enough to have bought three or four turkeys for home consumption. "You were right, dear," she said. "The youngsters love it."

"Happy, Alice?" he asked. Custer has invited Bill before the young people go to the dance. "Come on, Alice, let's show these kids what for." In spite of the crowd, William covered the ground as he had in college when she fell in love with him. She was glad that she had managed to have her hair done Saturday. The gardenias the children had given her to wear to church yesterday were still fresh. She'd let Sister wear them tonight if her date didn't crash through. Bill had bet Sis fifty cents he wouldn't.

The orchestra melted into "White Christmas," and young Bill tapped his father on the shoulder. "Mom's favorite, Dad. Let's change." Alice said, "You dance almost as well as your Dad."

"Look at him, will you?" said Bill. "Quite the old boy." Before long everyone was helping Bill and Sister dress for the dance. Bill lost his wager, and whistled over the red roses that were just right on the turquoise blue of Sister's frock. She said Bill looked simply gorgeous in his tuxedo and when his father saw him he said, "Too bad they don't wear 'em in the army, son."

They heard Bill call Rosemary's number on the phone downstairs and then he closed the door for privacy. "Wouldn't you think," said Sister, "he'd give the poor girl a chance to take a bath? I bet she gets good and sick of him."

Suddenly Alice remembered a call she had forgotten to make about the baskets the church distributed yesterday. She flew to the upstairs extension, and when she heard Bill still talking in leisurely fashion, she opened her mouth to say, as she often did when necessary, "Hang up, you two, I need the phone."

Florence Ann Bowles Gives Christmas Party On Eighth Birthday

Florence Ann Bowles, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Bowles, was hostess of a Christmas party on Tuesday afternoon in observance of her eighth birthday anniversary. The affair was given at the high school. The guests assembled in the auditorium where they were shown movies, after which they gathered in the cafeteria where they had a Christmas tree, with presents for each guest.

After the distribution of gifts in the form of Santa Claus were served with cakes and candies. The young hostess was assisted in serving by her mother, Mrs. L. M. Richeson and Ann Woody. Among those present were Betty Barber, Ann Williamson Prevost, Marguerite Russ, Lane Prevost, Laura Woody, Linda Sloan, Ann Coman Crawford, Julia Ann Stovall, Agnes Jane Robinson, Jane Davenport, Patsy Erell, Dale Hall, Stephen Woods, Jeff Reece, George W. Williamson, Bill Crawford, Donald Erell, Skaper Sloan and Tony Davis.

Potted Yule Trees Can Be Used for Several Years

The record of using the same Christmas tree for the last five holidays is held by Mrs. H. R. Yount of Brunswick county in North Carolina.

Mrs. Yount planted a small cedar by her farm house and the first Christmas it was about 16 inches high. She placed it in a pot and used it as a table tree with appropriate decorations.

After the first Christmas, she replanted the small tree by the house, then dug it up again and placed it in a bucket on a table for its second holidays.

Again it was replanted and the third year it took its place on the floor with the children adding the necessary decorations. It was very carefully treated and again reset by the house. For the last two years it has been used as an outside Christmas tree to carry all the lights and decorations.

Mrs. Yount and the other members of the family have made special preparations for decorating the traditional Christmas tree again this year.

Peanuts Nourishing
Peanuts add nourishment and flavor to fruit and vegetable salads.

Remove Salt
