VET AND BABY REUNITED IN LONDON

HAVING FLOWN ACROSS THE ATLANTIC on priority to visit his baby son, Stephen Buehko, 27, is shown at the bedside of the infant Stephen Paul in a London hospital. Looking through the window is the baby's mother. Hospital officials permitted only one parent at a time to visit the baby. The ex-GI hoped to bring his family back to the United States. WASHINGTON — Two strong moves against runaway inflation were made this week by top authorities in Washington. The Federal Reserve Board, effective next Monday, put a powerful restraint on stock market margin trading by boosting margin requirements to 100 per cent. Meanwhile, it was learned that a decision has been reached by President Truman to ask Congress in his budget message to renew for the fiscal year a substantial part of the $1,798,000,000 food subsidy program previously scheduled to end on or before June 30.

The Federal Reserve action was the fourth increase in the margin rate since 1937, when a 40 per cent requirement was made. On Feb. 5, 1945, the requirement was raised to 50 per cent, and on July 5 of last year, the requirement was required to put up 75 per cent cash for their purchases.

Glenn Ernest Giles, Cox (T), of Waynesville, who has served in the U. S. navy for the past 18 months, has recently received his discharge from the service at the Naval Separation Center at Charleston, S. C.

His last permanent duty was service on board the U. S. S. Hunter Victory. He is entitled to wear the American Theater, the Asiatic-Pacific Theater ribbons and the Philippines Liberation medal.

DARK BROWN TASTE

A gentle lady, definitely of the old school, was persuaded by her granddaughter to go to one of those superlative, full-colored, mammoth musical extravaganzas of which Hollywood is so proud. The dear soul sat through it all without comment, and on her return, found herself regarded as something of a martyr by the rest of the family.

"Mother," her own daughter asked, "how on earth did you ever allow yourself to be talked into going to such a tasteless exhibition?"

The old lady drew herself erect. "I don't agree with you at all," she said with dignity. "It had lots of taste—all of it bad."

Judge—Haven't you got a lawyer? Defendant—No, Judge. I decided to tell the truth.

In the Army

Sambo — How come you don't want to be in no cavalry in dis man's army?

Rastus — No special objection cepin' Ah's careful. If we's retreatin' Ah don't want no horse Ah got to be draggin' along.

Hubby—The whole block knows you burned the cabbage this afternoon.

Wife—Yes, I guess they got wind of it.

Appropriate

Harry—Why do you call your girl "Square"?

Jerry—Because she doesn't get around much.

The Old Grind

Joe—Why does Harry carry that grindstone around with him?

Bill—To sharpen his wits and whet his appetite.

Cute Trick

Joe—How come you call your girl "Cheekers"? That's an odd name!

Bill—Well, every time I make a move she jumps.

Large Congregation

Harry—There was a tremendous crowd at our church last night.

Jerry—New minister?

Harry—No. It burned down.

Let Me Finish

She—Anything you say goes...

He—That's what I like to hear you say.

She—In one ear and out the other!

Just a Comment

Diner—Steak, rare.

Waiter—Yes, aren't they?

REST FOR ALL

Jane—I've arranged a little piece for the piano. I'm so happy!

Joan—I'm happy too. It's about time we had a little peace around here.

Right Answer

Warden—Didn't you see that sign "Private—No Fishing"?

Trespasser—I never read anything marked "Private."

You Said It!

Joe—Joe Donakes is certainly in love with himself!

Bill—I'll say. It's been a lifelong romance.

Big Success

Jim—Did Bill stop the show with his act?

Slim—No, but he certainly slowed it up considerably.

Actors are Funny

Manager—Why do you want to take the part of the villain in the new play?

Actor—I want to make his-story.

Double Wit

Pvt.—Is she clever? Yes, indeed—why she has brains enough for two.

Sgt.—Then she is just the girl you ought to marry.

True to Life

Betty—Let's play school.

Letty—Okay, but let's play that I'm absent.

Simple Request

Slim—Pass the coffee.

Jim—If what?

Slim—If you can reach it!

Two More Needed

Jim—Let's get married.

Her—Who'd have us?

Over and Over

Jimmy—Does history repeat itself?

Johnny—Yes, if you flunk it.

Curb Foot-Mouth Disease

Don't "Command", "Request"

By GARRY CLEVELAND MYERS, Ph.D.

WHEN you give a negative command to the young child, be decisive. Don't even request the tot to quit doing what he knows very well he should not do. Tell him and only once. If he does not stop promptly, spank him soundly.

If, however, it is something you wish him to do, other than a routine matter, you rarely should command him at all but request. Then you should treat his response to your request about as if he were an honored adult guest, if you don't want a stubborn child but want one that is co-operative. This I discuss at length in my bulletin, "Stubbornness," to be had in a stamped envelope.

Mother Writes

A mother who was much impressed with the way she was brought up by her own mother writes: "Mother carried out the suggestions I have been reading in your column of requesting, with 'please' and 'thank you.' Naturally that became my habitual way of getting people to do things. My requests will invariably be in the nature of 'Wouldn't you like to...' instead of 'Go do...'

"For some reason or other, this doesn't seem to work with my two sons, 4 and 3. The younger, except for a few streaks of stubbornness, is fairly easy to manage. But Billy, whom we have suspected of having an unusual mind, is the one that gives trouble. A positive request is usually executed without comment except for a little bragging on his part or praise on mine. But a negative one starts a discussion and before I realize it we are deep in an argument. It starts out with his 'why' and my explanation. (I've always avoided 'because I say so' as a reason).
