Under the program payments are made to dairymen to encourage sumer prices.

Officials indicated that the program will be continued beyond June 30 if congress acts favorably upon price control and subsidy legislation recommended by President Truman. In his message on the state of the union, the chief executive asked that his authority for payment of food subsidies-which is due to expire June 30-be continued until the danger of higher prices has passed.

Payments are made to farmers on the basis of milk and butter fat they produce themselves. During April the subsidy rates on whole milk will range from 60 to 90 cents per hundred pounds depending on the area where produced. Rates are lowest in areas where feed and other production costs are normally the lowest. The lowest-cost production areas are largely in the Midwest.

In May and June the rates for whole milk will be 25 to 55 cents. Those farmers who sell butter fat rather than whole milk will get a subsidy of 17 cents a pound for their fat during April and 10 cents during May and June. Officials explained that the lower rates for May and June reflect the fact that milk production costs are lower during the spring and early the other the plant roots cling to summer when pastures provide the bulk of the dairy cow's feed.
