

Special Musical Program To Be Given At Junaluska

Presenting a program of special interest to ministers, choir directors and others interested in church music, Dr. John Finley Williamson, president of the Westminster Choir College (Princeton, N. J.) and founder of that institution, will conduct a seminar on "Music and Worship in the Church," June 23-28, at Lake Junaluska Assembly. It has been announced by the Rev. F. S. Love, superintendent of that religious Chataqua which serves a Methodist constituency in nine southern states every summer.

Other high points in the Church Music and Worship Week include a daily noon-day lecture on "Worship" and a worship service conducted by the Rev. J. W. Henley, pastor of West End Methodist Church in Nashville, Tenn., and a series of evening platform addresses by the Rev. Dr. J. Wallace Hamilton, of St. Petersburg, whose speaking engagements here last season were a popular feature of the summer program.

Dr. Williamson will offer four courses daily, of one hour each, as follows: (1) "Leadership for Congregational singing and choral speech;" (2) "The Human Voice in Speech and Song," a course designed to bring to each member of the class better understanding of the use and preservation of the voice in singing and speaking; (3) "A Creative Program in Christian Education," for the purpose of helping each pastor and choir director to build a stronger organization in education and religion; and (4) a course on "The Choir" which will seek to bring to each individual enrolled a better conception of spiritual values which can be achieved in beauty through ensemble singing.

Anticipating one of the best seasons in the history of the Assembly, Dr. Love has planned a program covering June 1st-September 1st, which will include church-sponsored schools and assemblies and special events conducted under the auspices of the Junaluska Assembly management.

Army And Navy Plan To Train Off N. C. Coast

NEW BERN—The North Carolina coast, which became noted during the World War II period as a main training ground for amphibious operations of American Marines, will become a training center for postwar amphibious courses for midshipmen from the Naval Academy at Annapolis and the Military Academy at West Point.

For the first time in the history of the armed forces, the midshipmen and cadets will train together for amphibious warfare, according to announcement of Vice-Admiral Daniel E. Barbey, new commander of the amphibious forces of the Atlantic fleet.

The amphibious units will operate as a task force and will join the Atlantic fleet for periodic maneuvers, Admiral Barbey said, adding that the scheduled joint training of midships and cadets will be another step toward full cooperation between the Army and the Navy.

Headquarters of the amphibious forces will remain at Norfolk, and most of their training will be conducted in Chesapeake Bay and along the North Carolina coast, and probably in Puerto Rico. During the summer of 1941 the first amphibious maneuvers of the kind in which the Army, Navy and Marine Corps all cooperate were held off the Carolina coast, under the general direction of Gen. Holland M. Smith, USMC.

British Coal Chief Finds Fuel Bin Low

LONDON—The one thing one might expect to find in the home of the President of the National Miners Union is enough coal for a modest fire.

On the contrary, however, the North London home of Will Wawther, British coal miners chief, has not had a coal fire since October. Mr. Wawther's home has had to manage with half a ton of anthracite nuts for the kitchen boiler for over a three-month period.

It is normal practice for the President of the National Miners Union to have his fuel and lighting bills paid by union headquarters which also orders his coal. But union headquarters have taken a very literal view of the coal-economy campaign in the treatment of their number one customer.
