When you have your next door neighbors in for bridge, serve some of these appetizers which are easy to prepare, delightful to look at, and taste as good as they look.

Salami and Onions
1-4 lb salami, sliced
3 dozen sweet pickled onions, toothpicks
1 large red apple
Wash and dry the apple. Cut the salami in 1/2-inch cubes. Arrange first a pickled onion and then a cube of salami on each toothpick. Then stick the end of the toothpick which is nearest the onion into the apple until all are used. Serve with a vegetable juice.

Cayenne pepper
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 egg white, beaten
Make plain pastries by standard methods. Roll to 1/4-inch thickness, then cut into rectangular 2 1/2 inches long by 1 1/2 inches wide. Drain the sardines free of oil. If large cut in halves, cross-wise. Sprinkle each with a little cayenne pepper and lemon juice. Then place the sardines lengthwise on each rectangle of pastry and roll up like a jelly roll, pressing the ends together. Bake in an oven 400 degrees for 12 to 15 minutes.

Chicken and Pepper Canape

Believe it or not, but last week a lady purchased a pair of first quality nylon hose from a local dealer and left the store very elated over being able to find a pair of nylons in Brevard. The next day, however, she returned the hose and asked the manager if he would refund her money. "The shade isn't just right," she said. Yes her money was gladly refunded.

Hershey Makes New Plea For Extension of Selective Service

WASHINGTON—Selective Service has appeared for extension of the draft indefinitely and spurred along a Congressional drive for action.

On the heels of a letter from Maj Gen Lewis B. Hershey, draft director, military committees of Senate and House ordered immediate closed-door hearings on the law which is due to expire May 15.

Hershey, writing the House committee, was reported by members to have recommended: 1. No time limit on extension but provision for termination by Presidential order or joint Congressional action.

2. Length of service, domestic and overseas, of men inducted in the future be limited to 18 months. The present law permits retention of inductees until six months after war is declared ended.

3. No change in present draft ages, 18 through 45. Under executive order the top age for inductees is 26 at present.

Chairman May of the House committee announced hearings were to start last Thursday morning with army heads as first witnesses. Simultaneously, Chairman Elbert Thomas (D-Utah) set the stage for Senate Military committee hearings starting last week also. He said he expected Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson to be the first witness, followed by General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower, Secretary of the Navy James Forrestal and Secretary of State James F. Byrnes.

Byrnes, Patterson and Eisenhower already have discussed the military and international situations with the House committee, their secret testimony last week having touched off the current drive for action on the draft law. There is strong sentiment in both

Senate and House committees for a definite time limit on any extension that might be recommended. Chairman Thomas has suggested an extension only until July 1, which would permit Selective Service to induct thousands of students deferred until the end of the high school year.

Once-Proud Normandie Just A Brooklyn Wharf Rat Now

NEW YORK—The once proud ship, the Normandie, has become a rest camp for barnacles, and naval experts say she may never sail again.

The former luxury liner now leans sally in her pier like a tired old lady who has lived too long, and too well, and is waiting for the angel of death to come and take her away. The one-time gladiator of the high seas, who set a North Atlantic speed record in 1935, is a hulk now. The navy doesn't know what to do about her because she is a waster and eats up money like other ships at coal.

The 23,000-ton Normandie cost the French line about $59,000,000 to build, and maintenance costs now run to about $250,000. The word around the New York waterfront is that the Normandie is strictly a jury ship. One of the shipyard workers, who is playing nursemaid to the ailing vessel says: "She's a bad luck ship and it serves her right to end up broke in Brooklyn, like any other wharf rat. The first time she came into New York she tried to knock down her pier and to kill a man."

Then, as you know, four years ago she caught fire at her Hudson river pier and capsized. The Normandie has never recovered from that accident. The navy is now trying to figure out what to do with the inanimate whale that lies in its death throes at its berth. It cost more than four and a half million dollars to raise her and it is estimated that it would take at least $20,000,000 to send her back to sea.

One unsympathetic naval officer has a solution to the problem. He says: "It might be cheaper to take her out and sink her in the middle of the Atlantic."

City Of Charlotte Gives Orchids To Careful Women Drivers

CHARLOTTE—Charlotte City and Mecklenburg county police and the State Highway Patrol have combined to award orchids—literally—to women drivers as rewards for safe driving.

Capt. David W. Henkel of the Charlotte police department recently announced the cooperative program which resulted in award of the first orchid to Mrs. Hebe Spauld, wife of the pastor of the Little Church on the Lane.

The award will be made weekly for an indefinite period.

Henkel explained that before an award is made the recipient will be carefully checked, her actions at the wheel coming under close scrutiny to determine if she obeys all rules of careful driving.

Each week such a driver will be selected, the license number of her car noted and distributed among traffic officers who will follow her whenever she is seen driving in the city or county.
