

Redden Favors Federal Aid For Schools Of N. C.

Asserting that education is the foundation stone of democracy and must therefore be regarded as a national responsibility, Monroe M. Redden, candidate for Congress, has declared himself in favor of Federal aid for schools.

"In my opinion Federal aid is the one hope of standardizing and equalizing educational opportunity and teachers pay throughout the nation," Mr. Redden said. "The economic condition of the South will not permit us to match the great industrial wealth of the North and East except through Federal grants. If this can be done without the Federal government dictating our school policies, I think it will be a great educational move in behalf of our entire Southland."

"It is not enough for a Congressman to say 'I will vote for the bill.' He should be active and energetic in its behalf. Passive support is not often rewarded with accomplishments."

"Already the teachers' load in the school rooms of North Carolina has become so great that it is an unusual burden on the teacher and a hardship on the pupil. When a teacher is required to have in her class more students than she can teach, it is a condition in which both teacher and student sustain a loss. On the other hand, we realize our state has about reached its maximum levies for school purposes, unless our economic conditions improve."

"The teacher is perhaps the most underpaid of all professions, and yet the teacher does not stand to gain as much from Federal aid as do all the people as a whole."

"Education is a national responsibility and for that reason the Federal government should make grants to states for educational purposes. If elected to Congress I shall actively support Federal aid for this purpose."

MAKE BIKINI TEST WITH MODELS

USING MINIATURE MODELS, three U. S. commanders check up on plans for the atomic bomb operations to be staged in July at Bikini Atoll. Here Brig. Gen. T. S. Power, assistant Task Force director for air, points to a pigmy superfortress—a replica of a plane that actually will drop the bombs in "Operation Crossroads". Looking on (left) is Vice-Admiral W. H. P. Blandy, commander of the Army-Navy task force and Maj. Gen. W. K. Kepner, deputy commander for aviation. Other models simulate in detail the air operation. (International)

"Conditional" grants were given the stations to obtain equipment and to plan programs. Ranges for

Russians Fire On U. S. Army Plane

VIENNA—Four Russian fighter planes made runs on a United States Army C-47 transport and fired from two to four 37-millimeter shots off the plane's wing last week as it came into the United States Army airport at Tullin, just outside Vienna. Airmen at the field identified the fighters as P-39s furnished to Russia by American Lend-Lease.

Because the airport is inside the Russian occupation zone, the Russians have prescribed strict regulations for the operation of American aircraft.

The incident took place about half an hour before the arrival of the plane carrying a special party of American editors now touring Germany. The latter plane was not molested.

What Colleges Face In 1950 Attendance

If you think colleges are crowded now, just wait until 1950.

W. D. Carmichael, controller of the University of North Carolina, said recently that during that year North Carolina colleges could expect 50,000 persons, above present enrollment, to seek admission.

Reporting on a meeting of the National Education Association and the Veterans Administration in Chicago, Carmichael said 1950 was expected to be the peak year in the number of veterans wanting college training.

He spoke at a meeting of the executive committee of University of North Carolina trustees, following which it was announced that Governor Cherry would appoint a committee to study the problem.

The committee will report to the Governor, who may then call a conference of North Carolina college leaders.

The trustees' executive committee approved the addition of $100,000 to the $1,000,000 which will be borrowed for the erection of two dormitories at State College.

The additional money was found necessary when bids on the projects were higher than anticipated. The $1,100,000 will be borrowed by the N. C. State Foundation, Inc., from the Wachovia Bank and Trust Company. The sum will be paid with returns from rent.

Accidents are responsible for more fatalities than disease among persons between the ages of 2 and 28, according to the National Safety Council.
