

Safety Check-Up Drive Started By N. C. Patrol

Starting this week and continuing for a six-week period, a Safety program sponsored by the State Highway Patrolmen, in a nationwide plan inaugurated by the National Association of Chief of Police, will be carried on, according to an announcement by O. R. Roberts, state highway patrolman.

The program will be put into effect throughout this section of the state in the following counties, in addition to Haywood: Jackson, Swain, Macon, Clay, Cherokee and Graham.

A thorough check will be made of all safety equipment on cars, including lights, brakes, horns, windshield wipers, and tires. Drivers licenses and registration cards will also be checked.

Any vehicle with a width of over 80 inches operated without clearance lights is in violation of the law, Mr. Roberts pointed out, as the law calls for red lights in the rear and amber in front.

In the checking over of motors there will be some cases in which recommendations will be made for repairs while other violations of safety will be cited to court.

The program will be put into effect by the state highway patrolmen in cooperation with the county and town law enforcement officers in the effort to cut down on accidents on the highways.

The check-up will be made in the same manner as that of the brakes on motors carried on last year by the state highway patrolmen.

Ancient Hymn
"Gloria in Excelsis," the hymn, has been sung for more than 1,500 years.

WCTC Alumni To Meet Tonight To Plan Memorial

A meeting will be held of the Alumni of Western Carolina Teachers College here on Tuesday evening, the 28th at the First National Bank, according to Jonathan H. Woody, president of the Alumni Association of the college. A similar meeting will be held in the Canton area for alumni in that section of the county at the YMCA on Tuesday, June 4th.

The meetings are being held for the purpose of having friends and alumni discuss plans for reaching an agreement on the Haywood County quota or Haywood county's part in raising funds for the erection of a memorial to the men who served in World War II and made the supreme sacrifice.

There were twenty-five Western Carolina men killed in World War II, with three from Haywood and in the latter group were Willie Messer, Elmer Stahlman, of Sterling, and Cecil Young, of Waynesville.

"In the fifty-seven years of its history, Western Carolina Teachers College has never asked the public for any substantial gift, though small gifts have been made from time to time for scholarships," it was pointed out by Mr. Woody, president of the Alumni Association.

"Now our friends have a chance to contribute toward a substantial structure which will remain through the years as a memorial to our students who paid the supreme sacrifice. We are confident our friends will make a generous response," Mr. Woody continued.
