Unagusta And Veterans Open Tonight's Games; Dayton Meets Pet Ten

Boosters Add 12-7 Victory Over High School For Eighth Straight

Unagusta meets the Veterans in tonight's opening softball game, followed by a tilt between Dayton and Pet Dairy. Monday's schedule opens with Unagusta taking on the Veterans and the Boosters playing Pet Dairy.

Thursday night the Youth Club was to play the High School followed by a contest between the Boosters and Tannery.

Games early this week put the Boosters farther in the league lead with a 12-6 win over the High School on Monday night. Bob Putnam pitched his eighth straight victory, and although the school team collected nine hits they were never in a position to overcome the early lead the Boosters run home.

Unagusta jumped into a three-way tie with Dayton and the Tannery for second place in league standings by tripping Dayton 12-7 Tuesday behind Leonard Woodard's hurling. Dayton, however, took a close 4-3 decision from the Tannery on Monday with a new pitcher, Hill, in the club line-up.

The first game Tuesday night turned in an easy win for the Veterans, who scored 19 runs and allowed the High School only five.

FISHING ACCOMMODATIONS IMPROVING

Fishing is perking up in both coastal and inland waters with summer cottages, hotels, and homes opening as havens to the weary sportsmen. Fishermen can journey to their favorite angling grounds assured that they may have a place to stay—that is if they have a reservation in advance.

Foremost in the mountain area, Fontana Village, N. C., is an entire community designed for a holiday resort and it opened June 15. As early as June 10, tourists were finding their way in to Fontana Lake and I didn't see any camping out or returning for want of a place to spend the night.

Thirty-mile Fontana Lake is the big attraction. Built during the war years, it still lacks a bit being full, but the bass haven't let that make any difference. They've moved right in to provide some of the better fishing of the entire area, not forgetting Lake Chatuga, Santealah and Hiwassee in the neighboring locality.

If you care to tussle with the trout in the areas of Blowing Rock, Boone, Linville, Banner Elk, West Jefferson or Little Switzerland, you'll find the summer accommodations open and doing a rushing business. Lake Lure, supporting some of the best fishing in several seasons, is operating full blast, along with Asheville, Hendersonville, Black Mountain, Flat Rock, Chimney Rock and Tryon accommodations.

In the sapphire country, Brevard, Cashiers, Highlands and Franklin have out the welcome mat. Southwest of Franklin is Hayesville where the fishermen push to try their skill in Lake Chatuga. Deep in the Smokies, Waynesville presents Lake Junaluska; Bryson City borders Lake Fontana; and Robbinville accommodates fishermen from Lake Santealah, while Murphy caters to patrons of Lake Hiwassee. The Sylva-Dillsboro area welcome fishermen whether they travel for stream or lake fishing. This is a good time to go.

PISGAH SUPPORTS GOOD FISHING

A total of 5,997 fishermen, fishing a total of 166 days caught about 23,407 trout in the streams and lakes of the Pisgah ranger district during the 1945 fishing season, according to reports released by W. P. Duncan, assistant supervisor of Pisgah and Croatan national forests.

The Pisgah ranger district comprises the Pisgah game preserve and the Sherwood cooperative areas both supervised jointly by the U. S. Forest Service and North Carolina Department of Conservation and Development.

The report shows that the 23,407 trout caught in the district during the season weighed a total of 3,973 pounds, 13 ounces, while the average catch weighed 2.28 ounces. An average of approximately 30 persons fished in the district each day of the season catching an average of 4.59 trout a piece.

RABBIT INDUSTRY

The shortage of meat during the war stimulated the development of a rabbit industry, says the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service. It now gives evidence of continuing growth in the future, for the research carried on shows that domestic rabbits now outclass their ancestors of ten or fifteen years ago. They have better meat, finer fur, are more economical to feed, less subject to disease, and breed more true to color, size, and shape, and perhaps in some cases even faster, if you please.

Small business characterizes the rabbit industry, most of the meat and fur being produced in small rabbitries whose owners devote only part of their time. Yet the amount of meat produced ranges between fifteen and twenty million pounds in 1944. That's a bunch of bunnies any way you look it.

PRECOOKED AND QUICK-FROZEN FISH

The U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service has announced a newly developed product which promises to modify our living habits in the future. It's frozen, packaged cooked fish. This has found wide use during the war for serving on board transport planes and in battle areas where it was not feasible to set up kitchens. Who knows, a few may even carry it for lunch when they're out fishing.

Gets Big One

TOM LEE, owner of the Twin-City Bus Lines, went to Florida recently to buy a large bus, but took an extra day and went fishing for tarpon at Sarasota, Mr. Lee is shown here with his prize catch, which weighed 82½ pounds. Mrs. Lee, however, excelled in fishing, by catching two that weighed 85 pounds each. James Gwyn, also a member of the party, caught two, one weighing 83½ pounds, while Mrs. Gwyn caught a 65-pounder.

Fishing this week-end should be about the best since the season opened.

Favorable weather and the end of the full moon point to this good luck, in the opinion of the game warden, Rufus Ratcliffe. There have been no heavy rains recently to wash enough feed in the streams for all the fish.

With the full moon trout and bass were rising at night to feed themselves, but now that the night is not so bright the fish are more apt to be enticed by insects—real and hand made—that float on the surface during daylight hours.

In his rounds last week, as for the past few week-ends, the warden found few anglers who had reported any luck. Practically all streams are well stocked, so fly-casters have an opportunity now for getting their limit and bringing home something to take the place of what the butcher didn't have.

Freak Creek in Kentucky

A creek in Breckinridge county, Kentucky, is named Sinking Creek because it suddenly disappears, traverses an underground course for several miles and reappears as a great spring flowing from under a hill.

ASHEVILLE'S annual City Open Golf Tournament, which starts Monday and runs through Friday on the Municipal links, will draw at least 20 local golfers.

Bob Allen and R. L. Hendricks plan to sign up. Both hug par pretty close on the Waynesville links and we'll follow their performance in the neighboring city with our best wishes.

WEDNESDAY, when Canton and Hazelwood tossed fast balls to each other on the local field, marked the centennial anniversary of that sport.

On June 19, 1846, two teams that called themselves the Knickerbockers and New York met on a picnic ground in Hoboken, N. J., called the Elysian Fields; Alexander Cartwright who decided on 90-foot bases and the first rules—the side that first got 21 runs in an even inning won—is generally considered the founder of baseball. The New York team won, 21 to 1, in the fourth inning. Interest in the sport died for a while, but in 1857 a national association was formed that adopted the present set of rules, devised by Cartwright, and the game spread like a wave over the country. A historical marker stands now on the Elysian Fields where was born what is now called our National Pastime.

WHILE on the subject of baseball, let's record a few of the difficulties that have faced the Hazelwood team so we can better appreciate the record it has made. The team's line-up has been continually changed, due principally to injuries. Smith was a pre-season loss due to an injury, and Shook left for the eastern part of the state to join an American Legion nine. Fore broke his ankle in the Beacon game, and Henry had the same luck while playing tag football at W.C.T.C., where he is a student. Absent from the Canton game was Milner, who went to Camp Lejeune to get his discharge from the Marine Corps (he's a first lieutenant who's been here on terminal leave). Some of these men, of course, will return to the fold before too long. Bud Blalock has been talking to Bob Putnam about helping on the mound, but Bob's arm has been a little sore.

THE Canton game completed Hazelwood's first round of meeting all teams in the Industrial League. For your interest, here are the scores: 10 to 8 against Ecusta, 14-2 over Martel, 7 to 6 against Green River, 7 to 4 against Enka, 6 to 5 over Beacon, and Saturday's 10-2 win at Sayles.

DAYTON'S softball team has also had difficulties with injuries. Jim Phillips, their regular pitcher, had a bad ankle that dropped him from the line-up, so his brother, Raymond, took his place Tuesday. Hill, a newcomer from Clyde, pitched for the rubber company's team the night before.

Enka Nine Will Be Saturday Afternoon Asheville Ball Field

Burrell Holds Canton To Four Hits and Bats Two Runners Home With Double

Champion Y, the last team of the Industrial League circuit to be met by Hazelwood, played a tight game of ball here Wednesday afternoon but the offense was all with Hazelwood as they added their seventh victory with a 5-0 for the record.

J. C. Burrell's injured right ankle failed to mar seriously either his pitching, batting or good humor. He held Canton to four scattered hits, adding a fourth win to keep his lead in league pitching, rapped out a double in two official times at bat which run his batting up to .471.

Next on Hazelwood's schedule is Enka, who will be played Saturday at 3:30 p. m. on Asheville's McCormick Field. After that will come two straight Saturday afternoon games here.

Hazelwood started the scoring early. Elmer Dudley in the first inning hit safely, went to second on a past ball, and tallied when Blalock drove a fast grounder through second. As the second inning got under way it started to rain, which seemed to enliven the visiting batsmen. With two men out, Muse hit safely to
