The output was 3.85 per cent higher than in March and brought the total for the first four months of 1946 to 20,115,514 units, compared with 6,363,854 for the same 1945 period.

'Claudia' Announced As First Summer Players Presentation

The Waynesville Summer Players, "The Theatre in the Sky", will open their season of five plays on July 16th, with Rose Franklen's famous comedy success, "Claudia," Maurice Geoffrey, managing director of the group announced yesterday. They will appear at the High School Auditorium on Brown Avenue.
Hailed as one of the outstanding comedies of recent Broadway seasons, "Claudia" ran in New York for over two years, was played simultaneously by several road companies, was produced in London, Paris and Sydney, Australia, and then made into a motion picture with Dorothy McGuire, creator of the title role, and Robert Young. It has been one of the most popular plays in the Summer Theatre circuit and was selected by Geoffrey as the opening production here because of the universal appeal of the Claudia and David stories upon which it is based.
The presentation here will feature Phyllis Luis, charming brunette actress of stage and television in the role of Claudia, with W. Lawrence Benson as David and Grace Shiner as Mrs. Brown. Miss Shiner comes from Chicago where she has played prominent parts in a number of important productions and Benson has had considerable stage and radio experience in both army shows during the war and in civilian life since being released from service.
The remaining plays to be presented here, Geoffrey said, will be "Ladies in Retirement," the brilliant psychological mystery by Edward Percy and Reginald Denham; Henrik Ibsen's most famous drama, "Ghosts," with an all star cast, and Moliere's satirical comedy, "The Imaginary Invalid," with a magnificent production of rich 17th century French costumes and scenery. The season will close with "Post Road," a fast moving comedy-mystery by Wilbur Daniel Steele and Norma Mitchell, which originally starred Charlotte Greenwood, the movie star.

Each play will be presented for four nights, opening every Tuesday. Rosemarie Thomas is in charge of production activities and special costumes have been designed for the presentations here by Elma Hene Geoffrey. The complete cast of players, who will spend the summer in Waynesville, will be announced at an early date.
The Waynesville Summer Players are sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce and season tickets

State Will Spend Largest Amount Ever On Schools

New Budget
Of $42,676,129
Adopted By State
Board Of Education

RALEIGH—The State's participation in the operation of public schools for the ensuing fiscal year will cost an estimated $42,676,129, an all-time high topping expenditures for the fiscal year just closing by $1,474,531.88.
Although the nine-month school-fund budget adopted by the State Board of Education calls for expenditures of nearly $1,500,000 above those of the current fiscal year, no salary increases are provided for any school personnel. The extra money will be used to employ 602 additional teachers, to take care of increased transportation costs and increased costs of operating plants, and to purchase coal usually bought out of the previous year's funds but which couldn't be purchased this spring because of the coal shortage.
In addition the $42,676,129 to be spent next year for operation of schools, the State's General Fund will be called upon to pay out somewhere in the neighborhood of $3,200,000 for emergency salaries. These emergency salaries, paid on the basis of $120 a year to all teachers and State employees, were provided by the 1945 General Assembly. Emergency salaries paid teachers and other school personnel during the current fiscal year totaled $3,163,320.
The main increase in next year's budget over the one for the current year comes in instructional salaries, which totaled $34,011,085 during the year just ended. The board has estimated that $811,496 more will be needed next year to pay the 602 additional teachers to be employed; $14,712 will be needed for salaries of six additional classified principals; and $522,560 will be needed to take care of the estimated increase in teachers holding higher certificates and other teachers entitled to higher salary increments.
