PROVIDING . . .

Rural Telephones

Is A BIG JOB

It's a big one . . . the job of providing telephone service to rural people scattered over hundreds of thousands of square miles in nine states!

But it's a job that we're pleased to be doing. Southern Bell trucks and men are becoming a more and more familiar sight along the rural roads of the Southeast.

Of course a job of this size can't be completed overnight—particularly since more central office equipment must be installed at many telephone exchanges before additional phones can be connected.

You can be sure of this: We're doing the job, using the best equipment and technique Bell System experience and research can develop, and we'll keep on extending telephone service into more and more rural areas.

76 Vets Begin Business With G. I. Bill Assistance

During the first five months of 1946 76 Haywood county veterans started in business for themselves with financial assistance from the G. I. Bill of Rights.

Records from the state Unemployment Compensation commission which works in local offices at Waynesville and Canton and other towns over the state with the U. S. Employment service, show that more than 95 per cent of the Haywood veterans are beginning work as farmers. They are eligible under the G. I. Bill to file claims during the early stages of their self-employment ventures when expenses run high and they do not show a net profit of $100 a month, the difference being made up by the government.

During the same period a total of 704 veterans seeking work through the U. S. E. S. filed claims for unemployment Readjustment Allowances through the Haywood county claims takers. Most of the claims, however, were for a short time only, as many of the veterans secured jobs within a few weeks through their own efforts or with the Employment Service assistance.

On a state-wide basis, the records show that about one of every four eligible veterans have filed claims for Servicemen's Readjustment allowances by the end of May.

Of men inducted into the service from North Carolina, 165,185 came from agriculture and 245,961 from non-agricultural activities. County figures early this year reveal that of 4,007 Haywood men inducted, 997 were from farms and 3,010 were not.

During one week in June, new claims were filed by 36 veterans and continued claims were filed by 249 persons, indicating that 259 Haywood veterans were unemployed and were actively seeking jobs that week. During May, 11 veterans filed new self-employed claims.

Not all claims, however, are eligible for payment. Veterans must be able, available for, and willing to take suitable work offered them. About two per cent of the claims filed are disallowed because eligibility conditions are not met. Veterans who have begun filing claims and later become ill, however, have the right to designate another person to sign their claims and thus are eligible to continue receiving their allowances.

R. Fuller Martin, head of the Unemployment Compensation commission which processes all claims in North Carolina, advises all veterans to put forth every effort to get suitable work as soon as possible and not exhaust their allowances, which may be needed even more in later years than they are at present.

Six Haywood Men Are Nominated for Regular Army

Nominations by President Truman for permanent commissions in the Regular Army listed six officers from Haywood county among the 217 Tar Heels and 9,800 men throughout the nation. This group was selected from 100,000 applications submitted.

The Haywood men are listed by their permanent rank, with their present temporary grade in parentheses.
