

Europe Has Long Hard Road To Recovery, Dr. Smith Tells Rotarians

Noted Religious Editor Has Just Returned From Visit In Europe

"It will take Europe 95 years to recover and return to normalcy," Dr. Roy L. Smith, editor of the Christian Advocate, the world's largest religious publication, told Rotarians here last Friday. Dr. Smith spoke from first-hand information gathered on a recent trip to Europe, as a member of the president's food commission.

"The food situation is improving on Western Europe, but remains critical in central Europe," he said, as he explained that new crops were bringing some relief and shipments from this country were improving. Dr. Smith was in Europe for 30 days and returned June first.

"There is a tidal wave of communism sweeping throughout Europe. There is discouragement, restlessness and an uncertainty about money values," he continued. He pointed out how overnight the value of currency had dropped to nothing, and people were afraid of money.

In discussing international banking, Dr. Smith said, "There can be no real recovery of world trade until the disrupted standard rate of exchange is stabilized." He upheld the American loan to the British, by saying, "no nation has taken more than the British. No nation has been more severely rationed. Today there is no bread served in public eating places, and shoes cost $25 a pair, shirts from $9 to $15. It will take the British the next 10 years to overcome their present economic plight," he continued.

In contrasting the nations overrun by Germany, Dr. Smith said Austria, Poland and Hungary were the hardest hit. Belgium perhaps fared best, with Holland next. The Germans moved supplies and factories into Belgium, feeling that England and France would not fight through Belgium, but go direct to Germany soil. When the retreat began the Germans did not have time to dismantle their plants or move their supplies with them. This, however, was not true of Holland. The Germans stripped Holland of everything as they went, and Dr. Smith pointed out, "The Dutch are having to start from scratch."

Dr. Smith highly praised the spirit and determination of the Polish people. "They want the truth, they want peace, and they are striving towards that goal," he said as he told of speaking over the nation-wide radio. Dr. Smith was presented by Dr. Frank S. Love, superintendent of Lake Junaluska Assembly.

There were 29 visiting Rotarians, and David Hyatt was welcomed as a new member, being presented by Tom Lee, Jr.

28 Members Of School Band Now Taking Study

Isley Urges That All Instruments Needing Repairs Be Turned In

With 28 members of this fall's High School Band now taking special instructions, free of charge, from the director, Charles Isley, he is looking forward to having it in top notch shape for their Labor Day performance.

Students with instruments that need repairs are urged by Mr. Isley to bring them to him so that he may send them off immediately. He also is placing orders for new instruments, and musicians who wish to get them are asked to see him now so the instruments will return here before school starts.

Lessons presently are being given at the Presbyterian church from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. Mondays, Tuesdays and Wednesdays. The instruction is private and the cost is borne by the Board of Education. Other band candidates are urged to join the summer practice, and can make arrangements with Mr. Isley or at the Board of Education office for the hours of instruction.

Those who now are taking lessons include: Flute section—Eugenia Boone, Joe Fortner, and Malcolm Williamson, Jr.; Clarinet—Virginia Wilson, Betty June McCracken, Ann Bischoff, Vivien Watkins, Joan Morris, Dorothy Gaddis, Mildred Medford, Katherine Hyatt, Elizabeth Davis, and Lillian Knox Medford.

Skin Area of Animals

Compared with their weight, small animals possess more skin area than large animals, a good example being the mouse which has, relatively, about 100 times as much skin area as an elephant. Oddly, this weight-surface factor determines the speed with which an animal falls, for instance, down a deep mine shaft. While a pony would be badly crushed and a cat would be killed but not mangled, a mouse would not be hurt because its rate of fall, after the first 100 feet or so, would be retarded and kept steady by the greater air resistance.
