Care of Hair and Voice Training

By Ruth Current
N. C. State College

Although there are many types of hair and scalp conditions, certain hair grooming habits are helpful to anyone. Most important of all, and perhaps the most neglected, is a daily brushing. Five minutes at night is all that is needed. Use a stiff brush to make long vigorous strokes. Don't be afraid of disturbing a wave or rearranging a part.

Brushing is important for several reasons. First, it helps to remove dirt and dust accumulated in the hair during the day. Second, it stimulates the nerves and glands. If the oil glands are underactive, the stimulation to greater activity helps to keep the hair from being too dry. If the glands are overactive and discharging too much oil, brushing helps to distribute the oil more evenly over the hair and prevents oil from becoming clogged at the roots.

To some persons, voice is a great asset to others it is a definite handicap. But in most cases, an unpleasant speaking voice is the result of bad habits, such as speaking from the throat in a high, thin voice, rather than from the diaphragm. Effort spent in breathing control and in keeping the voice pitched low will often bring all the improvement which is needed.

Another common mistake, especially for teen-agers, is the tendency to slur words together and to be lazy about enunciating properly. Speaking slowly, and being conscious of enunciating distinctly, is probably the only practice necessary for correction of this bad habit.

Many persons have a tendency to speak with a nasal quality which is very unpleasant to the ears. Just as in changing the pitch of the speaking tone, the best way to improve a nasal voice is to practice breathing from the diaphragm in order to bring the more natural voice out rich and full.

Tar Heel Selected By Truman To Be Budget Director

James E. Webb of Oxford, aide to former Governor O. Max Gardner, was appointed last week to be budget director of the United States by President Truman. He succeeds Harold D. Smith, who recently resigned after many years service.

Mr. Webb has been executive assistant to Mr. Gardner since his appointment as Undersecretary of the Treasury last March. He has served as lawyer, business executive, and at one time was secretary for former Representative Edward W. Poin of the fourth N. C. district.

The new budget director comes from a distinguished Tar Heel family, his father being county superintendent of schools in Granville county for 26 years. During the last year of the war he was called to active duty, having enlisted as a private 15 years previously, and served as commanding officer of the First Marine Air Warning Group at Cherry Point.

World War I Vet Wants To Give Eyes To Buddy

DETROIT.—A veteran of World War One, who saw his buddies blinded in the Argonne Drive, wants to give his eyes to a World War Two GI.

The 63-year-old veteran, Jim Todd, of Detroit, says he is suffering from a fatal malady and is going to die "maybe tomorrow—maybe in three months—surely in five years."

Todd told the head of the Michigan recruiting district: "If I could help some poor fellow who has gone over for us in this war, I'd like him to have my eyes."

The fatally ill veteran says he stays at home, takes walks and goes to the grocery—but I could do that without my eyes—all I would need is a cane.

"You really want to do this?" the recruiting officer asked.

"I'd be tickled to death," said Todd.

Macaroni and Cheese Recipe Adapted to Fat-Short Days

By BETSY NEWMAN

AS I've undoubtedly suggested before in this column, if butter remains scarce, there is peanut butter, apple butter, cream cheese, etc. that we can use to take its place. To my mind cream cheese is the most satisfactory substitute as apple butter is sweet and peanut butter has a decided flavor of its own that doesn't always blend agreeably with other foods, both are very useful, however.

I've discovered that by melting the cheese at low temperature in a Macaroni or Spaghetti and Cheese dish, I can dispense with butter or margarine. I'll give you my recipe, and a dessert recipe that substitutes honey for sugar which is still scarce and will be for some time, it is surmised.

Today's Menu

Macaroni or Spaghetti and Cheese Spinach

Tossed Garden Vegetable Salad Economy Sherbet or Apple Pie Tea or Coffee

Macaroni and Cheese

1 c. thinly sliced or grated cheese
1/2 cup salt
1/2 cup flour
1 1/2 c. milk
1/2 pkg. spaghetti or macaroni
Pepper or paprika
1/2 cup salt
1/2 c. honey
3 bananas
Whites of 2 eggs

Cook spaghetti in boiling salted water until tender, drain, pour into greased baking dish. Put about 1/4 of the cup of cheese into a saucepan over very low heat, and watch to see that it doesn't brown. When nearly or quite melted, add flour, blend well and gradually add milk, stirring all the time until the mixture is smooth and at boiling point.

Add remaining 1/4 c. cheese and stir over low heat until cheese is melted. Pour over cooked spaghetti or macaroni, blend well together, season, and top with corn flakes or bread crumbs, sprinkle with the extra amount of grated cheese and bake at 350 deg. F. until brown, about 15 mins. Serves 6.

Economy Sherbet

Juice and grated lemon rind of 1 lemon
1/2 c. honey
3 bananas
Whites of 2 eggs

Mash bananas to a pulp, add lemon and orange juice and lemon rind. Bring water to boil and dissolve honey in it, add to fruit and mix well. Next, cool and fold in stiffly beaten egg whites and pour into refrigerator tray and freeze, stirring occasionally to prevent settling. Honey may also be used for sweetening in the Apple Pie, or corn syrup can be substituted.

Observer Sees Trend In England Away From Labor Party Majority

LONDON.—In the face of the current series of by-elections in Britain, the Labor Government of Prime Minister Clement R. Attlee has held its seat at Bexley, Kent, but with a much reduced majority. In fact, the Labor majority has been cut by nearly 10,000 votes compared with the General Election of a year ago.

To what extent could this indicate a significant jump in the voting power of the Labor Government? Special importance is attached to the current by-elections because they are taking place at the height of the incantation, the controversy and at a time when at least some sections of public opinion appear to be hardening against the Labor Administration's continued use of controls and its spreading nationalization policies.

Residential Localities.—But there is no solid justification to regard the Bexley result as a serious setback for the Labor Party, in the opinion of observers here. On the other hand, it certainly is an encouragement for the Conservative Party.

First of all, Bexley is not typically a Labor district. It is a residential locality on the outskirts of London, and the political opinions of its voters are prone to fluctuate. At the General Election a year ago, the Labor Party polled 24,636 votes, the Conservatives 12,924 votes, and the Liberal Party 5,730 votes.

In the current by-election, the Labor candidate, Maj. Ashey
