Peak In Textile Boom Seen Within Next 6 to 12 Months

ST LOUIS-The present boom in fextiles will reach its peak within the next six to 12 months, A. W. Zelonick, president of the International Statistical Bureau, said it the convention of the Chicago-St. Louis Fabries association.

The belief that the persent seller's market will continue for two or three years and that textile production can continue to increase indefinitely is unjustified, he said.

Mr. Zelomek warned that a sharp readjustment in price-quality relations and the general textile price level was inevitable, but added that on a poundage basis the textile industries could look forward to a three-to-five year period, beginning in 1948, in which total consumption would compare favorably with current levels.

Despite high incomes the public will not be able in absorb this voltime of textile yarns and fabrics at price levels existing today and certainly not the still higher price levels that are likely within the next few months, he said,

The Child Show-Off

"DEAR Dr. Myers: Yours 5 such down-to-earth practical psychology, that I am coming to you for advice. We have two boys, six and three. The older one is in school for the first time. We live about a mile from a very small mountain village, with no near neighbors, and Larry has never in his life had a playmate, except his younger brother.

"We get along here fine by ourselves but whenever we've had company, Larry's exhibitionism is a horror to behold. I've kept him in check by spanking him, or, since reading your column, setting him on a stool, off by himself.

Problem at School

"It works fine for that one time, but doesn't dampen his ardor in the least for another show another time. Now I find that at school, he is a very real problem to his teacher. He has an audience to perform for, and the older ones. I gather, consider him a three-ring circus. I learned just today of a spanking he got at school several days ago for being especially naughty. He wouldn't tell me what he had done, when I asked him. saying he 'forgot.' "I don't know how to cope with the situation. He knows how I dislike his actions, that other people don't like them either; but children laugh and that's all he needs to start strutting his stuff. A selfaddressed envelope is enclosed."

In answering this mother, I enclosed a selected list of books and pamphlets designed to help parmy bulletin, "Jealousy."

Although some punishment of that chap will be necessary at times, your main problem is remote from punishment. Any other child of six who had never had a playmate other than a prother, three, could be expected to act before company and at school about as he does. No through ar-old can be a desirable sole playmate of a six-year-old.

Always his little brother has marveled at the exploits of his hig brother. The schoolmates don't respond as little brother does but consider him queer and funny, he supposing this their mode of approval. Before company, this lad wants to be sure he gets more nt-tention than his little brother. It may help him if when there are guests he can help serve refreshments or take their wraps.

Please don't urme him to tell you when and why he has been in-ished at school. Let him save his face. Just let him know you are sorry he needed punishment.

Hard as it may on for you, find a way to get him with playmates of his age. Go with him to visit in a home with such and invite one at a time to your home, say for a week-end. See what arrears at normal play he has to make up. Normal playmates alone can help him in this. As this lad learns to do more things his playmates do for wholesome fun, and grows more sure he is loved as much as his brother, he will show off less. In the meanwhile, try to be patient with this child, for when he annoys you most he probably feels most miserable.
