Legion Postpones Sept. Meeting To Next Thursday, Speaker Named

The regular monthly meeting of the local American Legion post, scheduled for Friday, Sept. 13, is postponed until Thursday, Sept. 19, in order not to conflict with the opening football game here this week. It was announced Monday by William Medford, post adjutant.

James W. Tisdale, of Asheville, nationally-known Legionnaire, has been secured as principal speaker for next week's meeting, which will be held at the American Legion Home on Depot street.

He will speak on the recent changes in organization and policy of the Legion in North Carolina. As a representative of the Fifth District, the Western North Carolina counties, on the five-man State Administrative committee, Mr. Tisdale is well qualified to give a complete picture of what the Legion is doing now in this state and what it plans to do in the future.

The administrative committee was created at the recent state convention in Winston-Salem and given the job of carrying out the policies set by the Executive Committee of the State Department.

Mr. Tisdale served in the Army during World War I, losing a leg during the fighting in France. He grew up, however, in naval circles; his father was a naval officer and he spent his early life at Annapolis. He has been living in Asheville for the past 26 years, where he has taken a prominent part in civic affairs and the work of the Legion. He had three sons in World War II.

Mr. Medford, member of the Executive Committee of Haywood Post No. 47, remarks that "We are indeed fortunate in securing a man so prominent in Legion affairs for this meeting. All veterans are being invited personally to attend in order to become more acquainted with the work of our organization."

Musical Programs To Be Studied From Broadcasts

All schools in Haywood county are invited to take part in the Farmers Federation Music Appreciation program this year, James G. McClure, president, announced. There is no expense to the schools, he added; the only requirement is that each room or school provide their own radio.

For the past three years boys and girls in Buncombe county and Asheville have enjoyed the programs, and through them have learned something about the great music of the world, Mr. McClure said. The overall purpose of the program is to open a new door to pleasure for the boys and girls. If they learn to love the classics, they will get inspiration and enjoyment from them as long as they live.

The program began October 7, with a story "One String Fiddle." On the next two succeeding Mondays the life and music of Stephen Foster will be dramatized by a group of Asheville actors under the direction of Clarence Summer.

Study note booklets will be provided by the Coca Cola company and distributed to each student above the third grade before the program of October 28, in order that the pupils may follow words in their books as they are sung over the radio.

Programs will be broadcast on Mondays from 9:30 to 10:00 o'clock. The same program, designed for pupils above the third grade, will be broadcast over WISE at 1:15 to 1:45 the same day. A program for children through the third grade will be broadcast over WISE at 11:30 to 11:45.

to Washington in 1944 as assistant regional representative of Region IV, during which he served for a few months as acting State director for the USES in West Virginia.

Upon return he served for about a year as assistant State director, was commissioned as an Ensign in the U. S. Naval Reserve in August 1943, and was promoted to Lieutenant (jg) during his service of two and one-half years. He was assigned to the Fourth Naval District, comprising Pennsylvania, Delaware, and southern New Jersey as assistant to the district director. The world's finest music, on Victor, Columbia and Capitol records is used. The Farmers Federation contributes the time necessary to prepare the programs, the radio stations contribute the time on the air, and the Coca Cola company of Asheville contributes the study books.

Last year the North Carolina Symphony program was studied over the air before the appearance in Asheville of the orchestra. As a result, 8,000 children heard the concert—the largest crowd to which the Symphony ever played.

This year the course will be correlated with other appearances of musical organizations, including the Symphony.

civilian personnel director and was stationed at Bethlehem, Pa., most of the time. He resumed his post as assistant state director in February after release from the Navy. Mr. McCracken is a native of Haywood county, the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. McCracken of Lake Junaluska, graduate of Western Carolina Teachers College at Cullowhee and spent four years as teacher and principal in the Waynesville schools before joining the Employment Service.

Mr. du Bruyne, new assistant State director, also came up through the ranks of the Employment Service. He joined the UCC late in 1937 as a claims interviewer at Rockingham and served later as field investigator in Asheville. After transfer to the Employment Service, he served as manager of the Lenoir, Fayetteville, and High Point local offices, and was promoted to field supervisor and area director for the War Manpower Commission. Mr. du Bruyne was transferred to the State office in August 1943, as chief of placement and has served as assistant State director, and acting State director following Dr. J. S. Dorton's resignation as WMC State director and pending Mr. Albright's return from military leave.

UCC Chairman Kendall expressed entire satisfaction over appointments of Mr. McCracken and Mr. du Bruyne to key positions in the Employment Service and the assurance of continued close cooperation until and after the USES returns to State control on November 15.
